Ask Call To White House

Witness Testifies It Was Sought in The Interest of Loan by RFC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP)—A witness swore today the head of the Amerian Lithofold Corp., asked him to "call the White House in an effort to get some high influence" in favor of a government loan for the firm.

The witness was E. J. Toole, former treasurer of Lithofold, a St. Louis printing firm he testified in a Senate investigation of the charges that William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic national chairman, wielded political influence on the RFC.

Toole identified an extract from a diary in which he noted his connections with the loan application. The passage read:

"Haven't heard from RJB since last Thursday, when he was pressing, yes insisting, on having Cecil Green call the White House in an effort to get some 'high influence' used to accelerate the approval of our loan.

"I wouldn't do it, and Green agreed not to do it. As I told him we had been receiving complete cooperation from the RFC (Reconstruction Finance Corporation) officials."

Toole identified "RJB" as R. J. Blauner, then president of Lithofold, and said the conversation took place Feb. 3, 1949.

Earlier, an RFC official swore that Boyle never pressed him to approve loans for the St. Louis firm.

Doesn't Know Boyle

In fact, said the witness, J. Frank Williams, he doesn't even know Boyle.

Williams is the Reconstruction Finance Corp. examiner who approved $645,000 in RFC loans to the American Lithofold Corp. The St. Louis firm had failed three times to get loans from the government lending agency before Boyle went on its payroll.

Williams was the opening witness at public hearings before the Senate special investigations subcommittee, which is looking into charges that Boyle used political influence to swing the loans.

Asked by Chairman Hoey (D-NC) whether he had discussed the loans with Boyle, Williams declared:

"I have never had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Boyle or Mr. Gabrielson (Guy Hugh Gabrielson, Republican national chairman), either one."

He added that he did know Max Siskind, Boyle's law partner, and E. Merl Young, a one-time frequenter of the White House. A Senate banking subcommittee has named Young as a man with "unusual influence" on RFC loans. Young is a native Missourian.

Williams testified that no one, including Siskind and Young, ever discussed the Lithofold loan with him.

J. E. Toole, former employee of the Smaller War Plants Corporation (SWPF), now-defunct government lending agency, swore he had Lithofold's president not to use political influence to get the loans.

Toole said he helped as chief loan analyst for SWPC in 1944 to approve the granting of a $1,671,000 loan to Lithofold, and joined its staff "almost immediately" afterward.

Williams had told the senators earlier that Toole became treasurer of the St. Louis firm soon after approving the 1944 loan.

Senator Hoey said in an opening statement "The subcommittee has not sought to prejudice this case, nor will it render any final judgment until the completion of this inquiry."

He said the investigation resulted from stories published by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch concerning Boyle's connections with Lithofold, and he added that the inquiry will be "full."

Francis D. Flanagan, the subcommittee counsel, questioned Williams closely about the financial background of Lithofold and its record for payment of the SWPC loan.

To Avert Delinquency

Williams said the firm, when it started its series of three unsuccessful applications for RFC loans, had a record "of not being delinquent" in its payments to the

Sgt. Fleming is Back From Korea

Sgt. James L. Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fleming, 122 North Park, arrived in Sedalia Wednesday, September 12, to spend a 30-day furlough with his parents. Sgt. Fleming has been in Korea for 14 months. After his 30-day furlough he will report to Ft. Leonard Wood for further instructions.

Sgt. Fleming's brother, Sgt. Albert P. Fleming, who is stationed at Malden, Mo., will arrive in Sedalia with his wife and daughter, Rhonda Gail, Saturday, September 15, to spend five days with his parents and brother.

Polio Cases Are Now on Decline

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP)—Polio, apparently in a decline for two weeks, showed an increase last week, the Public Health Service said today.

Officials, however, still believe the disease has passed its peak for this year.

During the week ended September 8, 1,869 new cases of poliomyelitis were reported compared with 1,762 in the preceding week.

The cumulative total of polio cases reported since the seasonal low last March is 14,309, compared with 14,092 for the corresponding period in 1950.

Seven Given Positions in Schools Here

Resignations of Six Accepted at Board Meeting

The Sedalia Board of Education employed seven as instructors and to fill other places for the 1951-52 school year at the monthly meeting held Wednesday night at Smith-Cotton high school, after accepting the resignations of six other employes.

The board employed Clora Johnson as elementary teacher; Doris Nicholson as high school home economics instructor at Hubbard; Imogene Peoples as elementary instructor; Hazel Salmon as secretary at Washington school; Carl Tuggle, Jr., as high school instructor and athletic coach at Hubbard; William H. Walker, Jr., as custodian at Broadway; and Donald Reynolds as elementary teacher.

Those whose resignations were accepted were James Ball, physical education instructor and head basketball coach at Smith-Cotton; Edna Kelly, home economics instructor at Hubbard high school; Joyce Miller, as art instructor at Smith-Cotton; Armin Soph, Jr., grade 6 instructor at Broadway; Sheldon Toliver, who was scheduled to be the athletic coach at Hubbard high school and Marilyn Van Horn, secretary at Washington school.

Nine Voted Pay Boosts

Upon the recommendation of Dr. Heber U. Hunt, superintendent of Sedalia Public schools, salary increases were given to nine employed instructors because of additional hours of college credit or changes in previous scheduled assignment for the school year. Those receiving salary increases were: Sophia Grossin, Mary Dean Sisk, Gerhardt Jaeger, Minnie Murphy and Ardonia Byrd. These increases in salary were due to additional college credit. Those who obtained raises because of changes in assignment were Bernadine Dennis, Bob Edmondson, Howard Glavin and Robert Karnes.

The Callies Furniture Company was the low bidder for the 164 window shades mounted on rollers with fixtures and cords for the new classrooms in Smith-Cotton. Their bid was $399.80. Three companies made bids.

The Board engaged in a lengthy discussion on the type shades wanted for large windows in the new additions at Smith-Cotton, Horace Mann and Whittier. The Board decided to inspect the rooms and may purchase venetian blinds instead of ordinary shades.

Schools Receive New Clocks

An electric clock outlet has been placed in each of the new classrooms at Smith-Cotton, Horace Mann and Whittier for installation of individual time-pieces. Nineteen clocks are needed. The board decided to purchase from the L and G Electric Company, at a cost of $7.96 per clock.

The L and G Electric Company was also the low bidder of three companies for the furnishing of electric lamps for the Public Schools for the current school year. Their bid was a discount of 28 per cent from the list price.

The members of the board, Herman Bloess, president; Frank Hayes, A. L. Hawkins, Harry Brocher, Palmer Nichols, and Dr. Floyd Lively, approved the payment of bills totaling $28,303.18.

Boyle Declares E. Merle Young Volunteer Worker

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP)—William M. Boyle, Jr., told senators today that E. Merle Young was just another volunteer worker around Democratic national headquarters in the 1948 election campaign.

Young's name, which had figured in a sensational investigation of RFC loans, was injected into a Senate hearing on election law reforms by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me). She said she had heard reports that Young acted as Boyle's "alter ego" at the Democratic committee in 1948.

Specifically, she said, she had received reports that Young at times occupied Boyle's room at party headquarters in Boyle's absence and that telephone calls to Boyle "were referred to and cleared through Young." Young is a native Missourian.

Boyle, now national Democratic chairman, promptly replied that there "must be some confusion." Boyle said that in 1948 he, himself, had no official capacity whatever with the national committee but simply had pitched in as a volunteer worker to help elect President Truman.

Young was a central figure in a Senate probe early this year into charges that an outside influence ring had swayed decisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, huge government lending agency.

Also figuring in the hearings then were a royal pastel mink coat received by Young's wife, a former White House stenographer, also a Missourian.

One Among Many

Boyle said Young was just one of many persons who came into party headquarters in 1948 and offered his services.

He said that Young answered telephones and ran errands but had no title or other official capacity.

Earlier, Boyle has urged that

Model Plane Contest to be Held Sunday

C. of C. Sponsors The Seventh Annual Contest at the Park

The seventh annual model plane contest in Sedalia is being sponsored by the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce and will be held on the model plane flying field in the west end of Liberty Park. The contests will be held on Sunday, September 16. The contest is open for entries.

More than 300 invitations have been sent to model plane flyers in Missouri and surrounding states to participate in this meet and a large number are expected to attend.

A meeting of the committee was held this morning at the C. of C. office to complete plans for the contest. Members of the committee are: Jud Grayson, chairman of the recreational division of the Chamber of Commerc; Forrest Benner, director; Aubrey Owen, William E. Hurlbut, Jr., Dick Snow, Gerald Hayworth, Jr., Jack Cunningham, A. W. Haller, Ed Smith, John Ellison, Nathan Jones, Frank Evans, Dr. D. H. Robinson, Bob Cain, Ted Gardner, Kenneth Buchholtz and Ed Brown.

Registration will be at 10 a.m. and the contest starts at 12 noon.

The Lamy Manufacturing company and the Central Missouri Equipment company are donating model engines for winners in the junior and senior events.

A new event in the contest this year will be one which has created much interest to spectators wherever it has been held. It is the combat flying event, and is flown by two contestants in the flying circle. An eight-foot streamer is fastened to the tail of each ship and each one tries to cut as much of the streamer as possible from his opponent's ship with his propeller. The contestant finishing the flight with the longest streamer remaining on his ship is declared winner and then meets the winner of another team.

Many Interesting Events

Other interesting events will be precision stunt flying with the models performing difficult maneuvers, speed events where these tiny model planes often reach the speeds of 140 to 150 miles per hour, and flying scale which are true scale models of senior aircraft and are judged on finish, detail and flying ability. Many of the builders of these scale models spend from six months to a year constructing them and are naturally very proud of them, and of showing them at contests.

The classes for the meet will be divided into three age groups, Junior (under 16), Senior (16 to 21), and Open class (over 21).

Twenty-two beautiful trophies will be awarded first and second place winners and, in addition, two special awards will be made to high point contestants.

Processing of the models will begin at 10:00 a.m. and official flying starts at 12:00 noon.

Body of Track Worker Found

STOVER, Mo., Sept. 13—(AP)—The body of Paul H. Phillips of Jefferson City was found yesterday near a bridge over the Rock Island railroad a half mile west of here.

Dr. Jack Gunn, Morgan county medical examiner, said Phillips apparently had been dead four or five days.

Dr. Gunn told a coroner's jury Phillips, a track worker, possibly fell from the bridge.

Money Order Juggling by Reds Cracked

U. S. Not Loser But 'Commies' Add To Bank Accounts

(EDITORS NOTE: The following story is the first detailed account on operations of a Far East black market dealing in U. S. money orders, previously hinted at in dispatches from Manila and Hong Kong.)

By Jim Becker

HONOLULU, Sept. 13—(AP)—A fantastic blackmarket money juggling act that netted Communist China $32,000,000 or more in American dollars for possible purchase of war materials was revealed Wednesday by postal authorities.

The complicated money fraud scheme involved U. S. Postal money orders, federal checks and military payment certificates. Money orders were altered upwards, and later cunningly counterfeited. Signatures on checks and certificates were forged.

Federal Postal Inspector R. Frank Ogden of Honolulu smashed the ring after eight months of plodding patiently through Oriental back alleys.

Loophole Plugged In February

He revealed today that the Chinese Reds had netted $4,000,000 a month in American dollars for eight months before loopholes in money order sales were plugged last February.

Ogden said the money juggling scheme was the largest in post office history. It was the first time since the department began its money order service 150 years ago that criminals had successfully counterfeited the postal orders.

The Communist scheme began in Manila. Ramifications of the vast conspiracy reached into Hong Kong and Amoy, China, and resulted in the enlistment of black market gang members in the Philippine capital, the British Crown colony as well as air line employes in those cities.

Because of the sturdy international value of the American dollar, the plotters collected amazing profits on "paper transactions" and then siphoned the original money back to the United States.

US Lost Nothing

The U. S. government didn't lose a penny, but the Reds ran up bank accounts that could have been used to buy war materials anywhere in the world.

"If you have American dollars, you can buy anything," explained Ogden.

Ogden's investigations reached back to July of 1950, but there were even earlier intimations that a flourishing blackmarket was operating in Manila.

Here is how the blackmarket money switch worked:

Relatives and friends would send money orders, drawn on American post offices and cashable in Manila, to Filipinos there.

The Manila residents would take the money orders to the post office. But the gang had local money black marketeers posted to intercept the money orders. These men paid more than the legal rate of Filipino pecos—two pecos legally exchange for $1—to the holders.

Reds Take-Over In Manila

In turn the Manila black marketeers turned the money orders over to well-organized Chinese Communist gangs.

The orders then were smuggled to Hong Kong aboard planes, Ogden said, with the aid of bribed employes. Another bribed employe at Hong Kong would retrieve them from hiding places on the plane.

In Hong Kong, the money orders were deposited in banks by Chinese merchants. This established a bank account in American dollars for the merchants, agents of Red China.

They then purchased goods that could be bought only for dollars. This included scarce medicines and other products paid for with dollars deposited in Chinese banks.

Boonville Had $200,000 Fire This Morning

Storage Garage With About Thirty Cars Destroyed

BOONVILLE, Mo., Sept. 13—(AP)—A downtown fire was brought under control shortly before noon today after causing damage unofficially estimated at $200,000.

Boonville firemen, aided by men and equipment from Columbia, Marshall and New Franklin, confined the raging fire to two buildings in the 600 block on Main street.

Completely destroyed was the Viertel storage garage, containing about thirty motor cars and housing a motor equipment store and a motor car repair shop operated by Sam Hoberecht.

The Central Furniutre and Appliance company, housed in a buidling to the east of the garage, was damaged by fire and water.

Firemen managed to save the Kroger grocery store to the south.

Residents of several nearby homes moved out their furniture as a precaution and classes at the Boonville high school, half a block south, were dismissed for the day.

Traffic Detoured

All traffic on U. S. highway 40, which uses Main street, was detoured.

Willard Worst, operator of the garage, said the building was valued at $75,000. This figure, he said, does not include the equipment store, the repair shop or stored cars.

At its height, the blaze could be seen in Columbia, Mo., some 20 miles east.

Lloyd Geiger, one of the owners of the Central Furniture and Equipment company, a manufacturers distributing firm, estimated the loss to the company at $85,000.

Telephone service in the city was disrupted. Several cables running behind the garage, were burned out.

The fire broke out about 10:20 a. m. Hoberecht, operator of the repair shop, said the fumes from a container of exterminating fluid caught fire while being heated.

Hoberecht and Tom Parker, an employes of the garage, suffered minor burns.

Telephone Lines Damaged

Charles Sevier, La Monte, who is with the commercial department of the Southwest Bell Telephone Co., working out of the Sedalia office, went to Boonville from New Franklin where he stood by with the telephone company car

Billion And A Half Cut in Defense Fund

Senate Slashes Record Peace Time Money Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP)—The Senate today ordered a cut of an estimated $1,500,000,000 in a record peace time money bill for the armed forces.

An amendment directing a two-and-one-half per cent reduction in the total funds allowed in the huge appropriation measure was accepted by a voice vote.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), floor manager of the bill, said that he was willing to take the amendment to conference with the House after efforts to whack first $6,-billion and then $5 billion off the bill had failed.

As submitted to the Senate by its appropriation committee, the bill carried a total of $61,103,856,-030 but the Senate earlier had voted a $70,000,000 cut.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) offered the amendment ordering the bill to be trimmed by 2.5 per cent. He was joined by Senators Case (R-SD), Ferguson (R-Mich) and Flanders (R-Vt).

They told the Senate it would save approximately $1,500,000,000.

Earlier the Senate voted to restrict military flight pay to those who fly in actual combat or who spend at least 20 hours aloft each month.

Gross Had Day At The Races

Witness in Graft Case is Returned To New York

By Robert Farrington

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—(AP)—Gambler Harry Gross, urbane and grinning after his one-day flight from his cop guards, was shuttled through legal proceedings today to put him back on tap as star graft case witness.

Brought back from New Jersey where he had spent a leisurely day at the races, he was hustled before a U.S. Commissioner to answer a federal fugitive warrant issued after he disappeared.

Commissioner Martin C. Epstein dismissed the federal charge so as to formally return Gross to custody of the state, which has billed him as chief prosecution witness in its gambling-graft trial of 18 policemen.

The trial, still in its jury-picking stage after two days, appeared likely to collapse after Gross, exboss of a multi-million dollar bookmaking empire, slipped away from guards at his Atlantic Beach, L. I., home Tuesday night.

Before the federal commissioner, Gross was in a jovial, wisecracking mood. Asked if he were the missing, he grinned wryly and said, "I guess I must be."

Gross' attorney said he will seek to vacate an order—issued after Gross vanished — forfeiting the gambler's $25,000 bail. But District Attorney Miles F. McDonald said he will fight any attempt to restore the bail.

"I want to hold this guy," the prosecutor said.

McDonald, tired and grim, sat in on the proceedings involving his key witness, and then, with several deputies and Gross in tow, drove off from the federal building.

The district attorney would not say where Gross would be kept.

"I'm going to put him under such guard that I'll know where he is when I want him," he said.

The prosecutor motored to Atlantic City, N. J., during the night

Iran to Launch A Loan Campaign

TEHRAN, Sept. 13—(AP)—Iran will launch a 2,000,000,000 rial (about $60,000,000) loan drive next week in an effort to relieve economic difficulties stemming from the crisis over nationalization of oil.

This was disclosed today by Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi, who said the money would be used to meet the government's payrolls.

Ground Naval Air Squadron

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—(AP)—A naval air squadron in Alaska has been grounded by the navy for "morale reasons" after a series of recent air crashes there.

Word of the action was given to Rep. Mitchell (D-Wash.) today in a letter from Francis P. Whitehair, undersecretary of the navy.

Whitehair said a special board of inquiry is investigating the accidents.

Mitchell recently requested that the navy ground all navy Privateer bombers pending a check into the circumstances of four crashes in the Alaska area. The crashes claimed a total of 45 lives.

Whitehair informed Mitchell that three of the crashes involving Privateer bombers were suffered by Patrol Squadron 9.

For "morale reasons," he said, this squadron has been temporarily grounded by the commanding officer of the Alaskan Sea Frontier.

Because of the nature of the squadron's operations, Whitehair said, proceedings of the investigation must be confidential.

A navy air squatiron in the Alaskan area presumably would be used to patrol the ocean area between Alaska and Russia.

Suggests Two Places For Medics School

Dr. Stubbs Makes It For Ending Of Squabble

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 13—(AP)— Why not end the Kansas City-Columbia squabble over the location of a four-year medical school by using the resources of both places? Dr. Trawick H. Stubbs asked today.

Stubbs is the former dean of the University of Missouri's two-year medical school. He resigned because he believes the university administration didn't even want a four-year medical course.

He told the special medical school committee of the Missouri legislature of his ambitious program today. Here's the way it would work out:

1. Put the school itself in Columbia.

2. Then integrate a special graduate study program that would include hospitals in all parts of the state with a major graduate training program centered in Kansas City.

That way, he said, small hospitals throughout the state would get the advantage of expanded resident intern staffs and the students would get a broad graduate education in the health problems of all Missouri.

To get doctors in rural Missouri —where they have been markedly scarce in recent years—a program of hospital construction should be started to attract men to the country.

On that point he had the support of Dr. Melvin Casberg, dean of St. Louis university's medical school.

Dr. Casberg told the committee that establishments of the four-year school wouldn't do a thing toward enticing doctors to rural areas.

For Expanded Program

What is necessary, he said, is an expanded hospital construction program in the country. He said many of his students who consider going into rural areas don't ask whether they'll get rich there.

Instead, they want to know how far it is to the closest hospital, the St. Louis dean said.

On other points, Kansas City would be a more favorable site for the clinical years of the medical school, Dr. Casberg said

He said medical students must not only be trained by teachers but they must be "exposed" to practicing physicians and surgeons to get a well-rounded education.

Kansas City would provide more acute cases for clinical study, he said. A man with a ruptured appendix doesn't try to make a long trip to the University hospital in Columbia. Instead he goes to the closest hospital. There would be more acute cases of illness in a large metropolitan area.

Students frequently have to do some work on the side to pay their way, he said, and part-time jobs

Says Better Telephone Service Is Had by the Dial System

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 13—(AP)—Some Missouri cities served by Southwestern Bell Telephone company cannot get increased or improved service until new dial system buildings are constructed.

Harold R. Towles, Missouri, general manager for Bell, said today this is because all available space in many present manual exchange buildings is now being used. He was testifying for the third straight day at the Public Service commission hearing on the phone company's application for an annual rate increase estimated at $13,000,000 to $16,000,000.

"In Cape Girardeau, for example, we cannot add subscribers or give increased service to present subscribers until the dial central office equipment is completed in June, 1952," Towles said "The present building is completely filled with manual equipment."

Commissioner E. L. McClintock said a number of complaints had been received on poor service in Cape Girardeau. He added that the company had agreed to improve service there when it took over operations of the company in January, 1950.

McClintock came from Cape Girardeau.

Added More Operators

Towles replied that 40 new operators have been added in the Cape Girardeau exchange since that time and "the company's service index indicates a definite improvement."

The service index, he explained, is the number of calls out of 100 that are not answered by an operator within 10 seconds. In December, 1950, just before Bell took over operation of the company, the number was 12.8 he said. In July of this year it had been cut to 3.5.

Jerome M. Joffee, Kansas City utilities counsel, asked Towles if he thought it fair to ask for a rate increase in Cape Girardeau

Peaks and Ridges To Allies

Strength of Reds Being Subdued In East-Central Area in Korea

By John Randolph

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Sept. 13—(AP)—Allied troops won another commanding mountain peak today in their roller-coaster drive to force Reds off high points in rugged east-central Korea.

The allies gained the mountain top northeast of Kumhwa in less than three hours of fighting against only light Red resistance.

The same United Nations troops captured another peak and seven surrounding ridges in the same area Wednesday. The Reds put up a foot-by-foot defense.

An allied officer said Thursday there was "a definite decrease of Red strength in the sector." The area is just east of the Reds' old "Iron Triangle" troop assembly area in central Korea.

Allied troops with flamethrowers and bayonets captured six vital peaks Wednesday in bitter local fights that raged east of Kumhwa to the vicinity of Kansong on the Sea of Japan coast.

The battleline in the east is roughly 25 miles north of parallel 38, old dividing line between north and south Korea. The fighting of the past few days has pushed allied positions forward as much as three and one-half miles in some sectors.

On some of the heights, die-hard Reds were shot or burned to death in stone bunkers that sometimes had only one opening — a firing slit facing the oncoming allies.

Four Days Combat

The fighting for the peaks erupted four days ago.

On the rolling hills and plains of the western front, action was slow. Allied patrols scanned Red positions for signs of a strike from their built-up forces there.

AP correspondent Stan Carter reported that at least 250,000 tank supported Communist troops were believed in position on the western and west-central fronts for a possible thrust at Seoul, south Korean capital.

He said there are no signs that a Red smash is imminent but that there was speculation the Communists might try a drive this week-end, when the Korean moon is full. In the past, Reds have chosen the nights of full moon for attack.

Most sources, Carter said, doubted the Reds plan a major attack soon. Their present mission appears to be defense, not attack.

Ard, Carter added, there has been no indication that the front line Reds have received assault rations and equipment for an offensive.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, has said he does not expect a Red offensive soon but that he would welcome one for the opportunity it would give his forces to destroy Red troops.

Van Fleet has estimated there are about 800,000 Communist troops in north Korea, where terrain is more suitable for a large scale offensive than in the jagged peaks of the east.

Carter said the Reds in the west were believed backed up by at least 200 Russian-made T-34 tanks. Allied officers have estimated publicly that the Communists have about 1,200 Manchuria-based airplanes at their disposal in case of an all-out offensive.

Peiping radio asserted Thursday night that Communist troops "put out of action" more than 8,800 troops in the week ended Sept. 6. The broadcast said 58 allied planes were shot down in the same period.

There was nothing in allied communiques to support the Red statements.

Migs Down F-51 Mustang

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Sept. 13—(AP)—Three Russian built Mig-15 jet fighters downed an American propeller driven F-51 Mustang today in the fifth straight day of aerial battles over Northwest Korea.

The American plane, caught as it was going up from a bomb run, was hopelessly outmatched by the Migs.

"There was no change of pilot survival," the Fifth Air Force reported.

The downed Mustang was part of a flight that had been bombing a rail tarket deep in "Mig Alley."

"The Migs caught us as we pulled up from our bomb run," explained Lt. Wallace L. Parks, Portland, Ore.

They made at least 10 firing passes at us."

The Migs raced in aggressively against the Mustang, but showed no such spirit when 30 F-86 Sabre jets made a sweep over the same territory.

The American jets sighted about 64 Migs but could not get close enough to join battle.

Tito's Soldiers Still Consider The West an Enemy

In Yugoslav Zone of Trieste, Troops Are Allergic to Cameras

Pictures and Text by Julius Humi
NEA Staff Correspondent

EDITOR'S NOTE: Despite the fact that Tito is wooing the friendship of the West since he broke away from Stalin, Yugoslavia still rolls down an Iron Curtain to Western newspapermen. Here is an exclusive glimpse behind that curtain, told in words and pictures by Julius Humi (left), of the NEA's bureau in Rome, who is the first Allied national newsman to penetrate Tito's Zone B of the Trieste Free Territory, a piece of international real estate that may become a major issue at the Big Three meeting in Washington this month.

CAPO D'ISTRA, Yugoslav-occupied Trieste — The average Yugoslav soldier still regards the West as an enemy, judging by reactions I picked up as the first Allied newsman to visit Zone "B," the Yugoslav-controlled area of Trieste.

Once a Yugoslav "GI" and I stood with our "weapons" pointed at one another, I with my camera, he with his rifle. My accompanying officer prevented an incident.

Getting into the zone proved surprisingly easy.

The frontier that separates Allied-occupied Zone "A" from Zone "B" is only 20 miles long. But it is just as formidable as the other Iron Curtains between the Western and the Communist worlds. I had tried to have British and American officials arrange my visit to Zone "B" but without success.

Finally, I visited the Yugoslavian mission in the Allied zone. There was only one question: Did I want to go that afternoon or could it wait until morning?

My Italian friends were very anxious for my safety. They practically asked me to make out my will before I left. But I was never in any danger in Zone "B," although once a Yugoslav soldier persuaded me not to take a picture by the impressive device of pointing a rifle at my head.

The guards at the border were not as easily impressed as the secretary in the mission had been. Allied-employed Italian guards were astonished that I had permission to cross and the Yugoslav guards did not seem too pleased to admit me. But they did.

The camera I brought with me upset the Yugoslavs. I was only allowed to proceed after they assigned an officer, Miletic Rajko, to accompany me everywhere I went. Rajko passed on every picture I took, or at least he thought he did. I managed to shoot a few pictures of Yugoslavian soldiers when he was looking the other way.

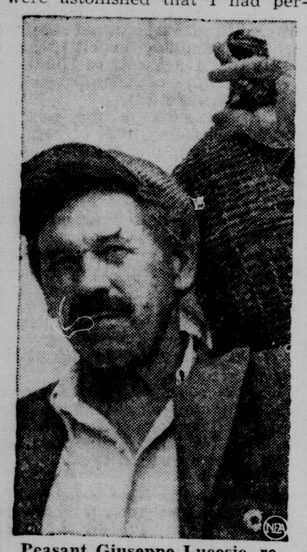
And there are soldiers, Yugoslav soldiers, everywhere in Zone "B." They are young and tough-looking, but their equipment is woefully weak. Their uniforms and boots are ragged. There are a few Russian-made trucks and jeeps, but most of the 5,000 soldiers stationed in Zone "B" travel by horse-drawn carts.

Rajko had said I could photograph soldiers if "they wanted to." Every time I saw a horse-drawn cart he made a great show of talking them into a picture. But always the answer was "niede," an extreme negative. At one place, a soldier pointed his gun at me to emphasize his feelings.

Rajko had to explain continually that I had permission to be there. Officers would suggest that I should be arrested, but he stood up for me.

Outside of soldiers, Zone "B" is inhabited largely by peasants. There are 75,000 persons in the area, more than 60,000 of them Slovenes, or of Slovene extraction. And their lot is a hard one.

Since the Yugoslavs occupied the zone in 1946, they have been cut off from Allied aid. The people had to produce what they needed to live, and had to feed the occupying Yugoslav troops to boot. It hasn't been easy. Food was rationed until very recently and clothing is still rationed.



Peasant Giuseppe Lucesic, resident of the Yugoslav zone in Trieste, was embarrassed because he wasn't working.

Horse-drawn Army: Tito's troops are young and tough, but their equipment is weak and most of them travel by wagon.

Tito's Soldiers: In Trieste, they didn't like the idea of a camera being aimed at them.

Yugoslav Resort Tito-run hotel in Yugoslav zone of Trieste was rebuilt in hopes of bringing in some badly-needed money.

Of late, some of the border restrictions have been relaxed somewhat so that Zone "B" residents may market in Allied-controlled Zone "A," where prices are better and goods more plentiful. And American aid to Yugoslavia has filtered through enough to ease the situation a little.

But Zone "B" has a weak economy. There are only two industries in the entire area — a jam factory at Isola that is working at half-capacity and a wine cellar still being built near Capo d'Istria. An unexpected bonanza has been the 52,000-ton Italian liner Rex, which was washed up on the shore near Capo d'Istria after it was bombed by Allied planes in the war.

A two-man crew has been working for over two years, slowly dismantling the ship. The scrap metal has helped Zone "B" make ends meet.

Authorities are hopeful that they've found a new source of revenue in Portorosa, a tiny tourist resort. They've reconstructed a 120-room hotel and fixed the beach until it rivals anything in the Adriatic. An agreement was reached with Allied authorities which permits American and British soldiers, stationed in Zone "A," to spend their holidays in Portorosa.

Few have taken advantage of the opportunity so far, but a good many Swiss, Austrian and Scandinavian families have discovered that Portorosa offers a pleasant and inexpensive vacation.

Throughout Zone "B," the People's Militia" is everywhere in evidence. Rajko continually reprimanded me for referring to that organization as police.

"Police are unnecessary in a country where everyone obeys the laws and is disciplined," he said. But he didn't explain what the function of the People's Militia was.

This militia is all made up of Yugoslavs, in keeping with a stated "Yugoslavisation" policy. Although bars and shops will accept Italian lire, the official currency is the Yugoslav dinar. Inscriptions on walls and shops are in Slovene first, then Italian. All customs officials, guards and even railway workers are Yugoslavs.

Although Rajko was explicit in saying that "everyone obeys the laws," I was made aware of fear in the peasants. I stopped to take a picture of an old man carrying his wine cask on his shoulder. I asked him how old he was and he said 64, well under the government retirement age.

The old man was apprehensive when he caught sight of Rajko and his army uniform. He hastened to explain that he wasn't working because he was sick that day. He started to pull out a doctor's certificate to prove it.

Rajko was obviously embarrassed as he led me away. For an instant I had caught him with his Iron Curtain down.

a farm is A DEFENSE PLANT!

Speak of a defense plant and a picture of a factory busily making tanks, planes, jet engines or bazookas usually comes to mind. Yet in the fight for freedom which we are leading today, food and agricultural products are the backbone of the defense effort.

The fields and farms of Western Missouri are in the front rank of agricultural producers. This region furnishes an abundance and a great diversity of farm products — corn, wheat, feed grains, milk, cheese, eggs, fryers, tobacco, fruits, and many others — all vital to our national economy and stability.

The work of carrying on this vast production is a task which calls for great resources — fertile land, industrious farmers, modern machinery and power to run it.

Much of the electric power needed to support farm production of Western Missouri is supplied by the Missouri Public Service Company through its system of generating plants and distribution lines. The company is constantly reviewing its growing load to make certain that adequate power reserves will continue to be available to its thousands of farm customers.

Electric power and farm production are closely integrated with the defense program.

Kidnap West Berlin Officer

BERLIN, Sept. 13—East Berlin Communist police, guarding the street barriers with which the Soviet sector is gradually isolating itself from the west, today kidnapped a west Berlin policeman on the sector border.

West Berlin police headquarters said Inspector Leopold Wittke was merely examining a newly-erected Communist barricade when he was seized by a group of East Berlin people's policemen and dragged off into the Soviet sector. Wittke was chief of a precinct station in the American sector borough of Kreuzberg.

The new barrier erected during the night reduced to 26 the number of streets still open for east-west crossing within the city. Until a few months ago there were about 90.

West Berlin authorities believe the Communist aim is to channel traffic over a few streets so they can control it easily.

Pledge $58,801 to Flood Victims

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 13—(AP)—A union has pledged $58,801 to victims of July floods in Missouri and Kansas.

The money was paid or subscribed yesterday during the convention of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the plumbing and pipe fitting industry of the United States.

Contributors promised to increase the gift after they consult their union home offices. Part of the money, more than $12,000 was collected from the 2,000 delegates.

The remainder was pledged by local unions.

The flood of contributions was started by Archie Virtue, of Detroit, who asked that each delegate give at least $5.

The Chicago and St. Louis lodges donated $1,000 each.

The largest contribution—$5,000—came from the New York union.

A San Francisco delegate said: "I know what it is to suffer because my family of twelve suffered in the San Francisco earthquake of 1913. I'll give $25 in addition to my union's contribution."

The money will be administered by a two-man committee of Kansas City union leaders to members of the plumbers and fitters union who were stricken by the flood, to the Red Cross, Salvation Army and to other flood relief organizations.

Radio Operator Busier Than the Pilot on Record Bomber Flight

WING COMDR. BEAMONT: For the pilot, little to do . . .

EDITOR'S NOTE: Some day, jet flights across the ocean will be commonplace for air travelers. Already they seem fairly uneventful to Wing Comdr. Roland P. Beamont, who set a new world's record for the Atlantic crossing Aug. 31 by piloting a British Canberra twin jet bomber from Ireland to Newfoundland in four hours and 18 minutes. Here he tells what it's like to a pilot on such a flight, which in this case was made to deliver a Canberra jet to the Glenn L. Martin Co. in Baltimore, which has been licensed to build a night intruder version of the plane for the U. S. Air Force.

by Wing Commander
ROLAND P. BEAMONT
(Written for NEA Service)

BALTIMORE — (NEA) — On that Friday morning there was a certain amount of low cloud and mist around our home aerodrome at Warton, Lancashire, when we flew the Canberra low across the field past the assembled work people of the English Electric Co. However, when we reached Aldergrove in Ireland the clouds had broken and visibility was very good.

After making arrangements for the aircraft's fuel tanks to be topped right up, we went into the station meterological office to check the Atlantic weather and there we found that conditions over the Atlantic and especially at Gander were forecast as quite favorable for our flight.

It did seem at the time that high winds over the last half of the flight might well have an adverse effect on the time taken, and I therefore told Watson, the navigator, to work out a flight plan quickly in order to see where we were.

This preliminary check showed that we could expect to make the crossing in about four hours 25 minutes. And although this was not as good as we would have liked, we decided to fly that day as it was quite possible that more adverse weather would follow in the next few days.

We left Aldergrove at 1:24 local time and climbed straightaway on course toward a heavy series of thunderstorm clouds. These gave us a rough ride for 10 minutes or so until we finally broke clear over the top into brilliant sunshine . . . and that's the way it was for the remainder of the flight. We flew high above all weather and overcast in clear sunshine and smooth air.

For the pilot there was very little to do but keep the aircraft on a steady course, fly an accurate flight plan, and keep a careful check on fuel consumption against time.

For the radio operator it was a different matter, however. R.H.T. Rylands was busy from the moment of takeoff onwards, establishing contact with stations in Northern Ireland and with weather ships in the Atlantic. Once he had established these contacts he was obtaining navigational aids and information which he passed frequently to the navigator.

Navigator D. A. Watson was constantly checking the estimated flight plan against the information obtained over the radio, and as a result of the combined effort of these two, the Canberra's position was established both in the neighborhood of the first and second weather ships as not more than a few miles off track.

At the end of the third hour, however, we began to run into an area of disturbed communications which probably resulted from a large electrical storm which appeared to be raging over the North Atlantic from 100 to about 500 miles east of Newfoundland. The result of this was that for the last 400 miles of the flight very little information was obtained for navigational checking.

Although Rylands did his very best at the radio, Watson had to rely almost entirely on dead reckoning for course alterations in the last half-hour and for the time for the beginning of the letdown. These times were vital because of the need for maintaining the greatest possible accuracy right down to the letdown over Gander in order not to waste a single minute.

An added complication did crop up during the last hour in that a very heavy overcast was building up beneath us. When we reached a point we estimated as 200 miles from Gander, the situation was this: The letdown had to be commenced from the great altitude at which we were flying, some hundreds of miles away from our destination.

However, owing to the heavy clouds it was not desirable to undertake that letdown without first knowing the weather conditions below the clouds. But since no information could be obtained of local weather at Gander, because of the electrical storms, we had to decide purely on dead reckoning on the exact time to commence letdown into the clouds.

After we had descended a few thousand feet, the clouds broke below and I was able to sight land approximately 50 miles ahead of us. A quick check on a map showed that we were less than 10 miles from our proper track in spite of the lack of radio information over the last leg. And we were able to push the aircraft over into our final dive which brought us in over Gander at 3000 feet at high speed.

Over the airport we picked out Gander Lake at the end of which two boats were to be moored with observers and time recording equipment. The weather was perfect, and as we flew down the lake at 500 feet above the water we could pick out the observation post 10 miles ahead.

Within a couple of minutes of crossing the finish line, Gander tower called us over the radio and confirmed that our official crossing time was four hours, 18½ minutes.

The U. S. Army says three fourths of all its enlisted men have attended high school.

Mattress Burning Time Tested

HUNTINGTON, W. Va—(AP)—How long does it take for a cigarette to burn up a mattress?

The Huntington fire department making a series of tests, found that a standard spring mattress will be destroyed in two and one-half hours. It plans to find out about other types of mattresses, too.

The test was made in a frame house erected for the experiment in the department's drill area. A cigarette left on the mattress set a smouldering fire which burned a hole all the way through in one hour and 11 minutes. It took one hour and 45 minutes for the mattress to break into flame. Forty-five minutes later, there was nothing left but ashes.

Electrified Insecticide

EAST LANSING, Mich—(AP)—Electrified dust is the newest idea for better protection against insects and plant diseases.

Fine dust particles of insecticide are given high electrical charges, of 12,000 to 20,000 volts, as they are blown out of the nozzle of a dusting machine. Plants develop the opposite charge, and attract the charged dust particles like a magnet, even on the underside of leaves.

The charging gives five to ten times better coverage of plants, and the method will get field tests this summer, said A. W. Farrall, head of Michigan State College agricultural engineering department. The idea originated with Henry D. Bowen, young graduate research assistant, who developed the method working under Prof. Walter M. Carleton. A thin wire in the center of the dusting machine nozzle imparts the charge, at low wattage, so the apparatus is safer than an approved electric fence.

Italian Composer Honored

ROME—(AP)—Composer Licinio Refice has been appointed Vice President of the World Academy of Artists.

Refice is well known in Italy and abroad for his two operas "Cecilia" and "Margherita da Cortona."

The diploma of vice president was handed to Maestro Refice during a ceremony held here in the home of Prince Beranger, president of the World Academy. During the ceremony, Refice told his host that he has nearly finished a new opera the title of which will be "Il Mago" ("The Magician"). The libretto is by Emilio Mucci of Rome.

Micro-Waving Improves TV Signals

NEW YORK—(AP)—Micro-wave radio links have been found in television network relaying which permit the passage of better signals, TV engineers here say.

This is attributed to the fact that present coaxial cables limit the width of the signal, tending to cut down on the transmission. In micro-waving, wider bands are permissable, thereby eliminating such handicaps.

Author's Grave Overlooks Favorite Scene

PAPEETE, Tahiti—(AP)—Fittingly, the last resting place of author James Norman Hall, who died here recently, overlooks the bay where the ship "Bounty" anchored more than a century and a half ago.

Hall and Charles Bernard Nordhoff wrote a trilogy of South Sea stories about the Bounty—"Mutiny on the Bounty", "Men Against the Sea", and "Pitcairn's Island."

Fulfilling his long expressed wish, Hall's body was carried on the shoulders of six strong Tahitian men to the grave atop a hill near Arue.

The grave site overlooks Mahina point, forming the northern barrier of Matavia bay, where the "Bounty" anchored.

Pakistan Pushes Textiles

KARACHI — (AP) — Pakistan is making strides in the development of her textiles industry. She expects to attain self-sufficiency in 1956 with a target of 1,035,000 spindles.

Under an emergency development plan drawn up late in 1950 to buy 250,000 spindles in two years at cost of about $22,500,000, the government of Pakistan already has purchased 150,000 spindles—100,000 from the United Kingdom and 50,000 from Japan. A purchasing mission is now in Japan negotiating for the remainder. At present there are only 21 cotton textile mills in Pakistan.

Bombastic Claims by The Soviets

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — (AP) — You can take their word for it, the Russians are an inventive people.

They pioneered in some branches of science, and now they are undoubtedly leading the world today in scientific fictions.

You may take with a grain of salt their claims to have invented the telephone and the submarine, and to have built the first skyscraper, steppe by steppe.

But there is no question that in the field of diplomacy they are the first to achieve perpetual motion—a perpetual motion to disagree.

And in some kinds of medical research they are certainly well ahead. This is particularly true in the field of belief. If any Russian questions the truth of Soviet political doctrine, they have any number of strong serums to cure him of his doubts. They teach him wisdom with a needle.

The real trouble with Russian science is that it has an inferiority complex, and it faces toward the past instead of the future. It wants credit for having been first with something already invented.

This is no way to win an international popularity contest. Who cares who was the first man to invent brassieres or brass knucks? They're here, and that's all anybody really cares.

What Russian inventors need to do is to come up with something absolutely brand new, something the average man would like to have and doesn't have now. Only in that way can they win the world prestige they crave.

I have made an informal survey and gleaned a few suggestions that ought to keep Soviet inventive genius busy for a long time to come.

Some Ideas Offered

"If the Russians would build some undershirts that won't crawl up me in hot weather," said a fat man, "I'd be so grateful I'd even read a book by Karl Marx."

Another man said he'd never jeer at Soviet scientists again if they'd come up with a pair of shoelaces guaranteed to outlast his shoes. A third remarked he'd settle if they'd invent "just one really good television program."

"They're supposed to be so good at propaganda," said a hen-pecked husband. "How about them inventing a story that will make my wife laugh when I come home late?"

And an office receptionist pitched this problem:

"So many people are touchy and nervous today. Can't they think up something to make everybody pleasant and relaxed? A kind of anti-tension pill?"

A suburbanite had two ideas:

"First, I'd like a hammer that will drive a nail in straight — every time," he said. "And how about a radar-controlled lawnmower? I could sit on the porch and drink lemonade, and push buttons to mow the grass."

But a housewife, I thought, had the one best designed to test Russian ingenuity.

"Let them invent an honest and workable plan for world peace, and put it to use," she said. "I've got children growing up, and if the Russians were first in that field—I'd be happy to see it."

Well, Russian scientists, there are some real modern challenges for you. Bend to your test tubes, boys. The audience is waiting.

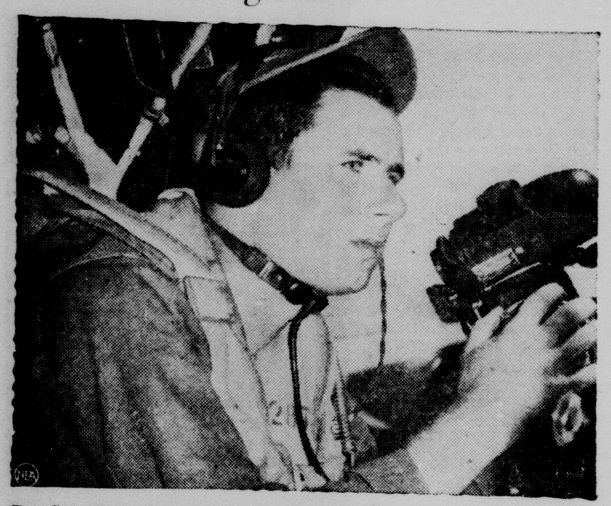
A B-29 Ride With an MIG-Killing Gunner



By Sgt. Billie G. Beach, USAF Written for Air Force Magazine
(Distributed by NEA Service)

OKINAWA —(NEA)— I'm just a farm boy from East Tennessee. Before I got into this war business, the fastest thing I ever shot at was a squirrel scampering up a hickory tree in the Blue Ridge mountains. Of course, a squirrel can't shoot back, but outside of that it's a lot like hunting for MIGs.

They're both greased lightning and you've got to be fast to get them. If you miss on the first shot you generall don't get a second chance.

You only have a split second to spot your target, draw your bead and fire. But you've got to be cool and deliberate. I never saw a jumpy, excited guy drop a squirrel. And I don't think I'm off base when I say that goes for jet airplanes, too.

Those first months of the war were just so much flying time for us gunners. We sat and watched—maybe ate an apple or read a book or a comic magazine—while the bombardiers and pilots did all the work.

We came into our own early this year when the Reds brought in their jets. At first it was an off-hand pass here and there. The Commie pilots were skittish and wouldn't get close enough to get our range.

But they kept getting bolder and bolder. They started shooting up the Superforts. It got so you hadn't lived if you didn't come back with a few bullet holes in your plane.

I decided I wanted to knock down one of those MIGs. We used to have a lot of arguments about whether a gunner with a .50 caliber machine gun on a propeller-driven bomber could bag a jet fighter flying at maybe twice the speed.

I said it could be done and I promised myself I'd prove it. I didn't realize at the time, though, how near carrying out that pledge would take me and the crew to our deaths.

It happened on my 19th mission (I now have 26)—my third flight out as the regular right gunner on the B-29, "No Sweat."

The briefing officer told us it would be one of the most dangerous missions of the war. Our targets were those bridges across the Yalu over which the Chinese were shipping all their men and supplies.

We were told the flak would be thick and accurate and that MIGs would be on our tails in large numbers. Our targets were in sight of the big Red airbase just across the Yalu river—in the deep end of "MIG Alley."

It was about noon when we got the alert that we were approaching the target area. Everybody got ready for the bomb run. We were less than five minutes away from the bridges.

Then the tail gunner shouted into the interphone:

"MIGs, about 30 of 'em coming in at six o'clock."

They were MIGs all right. They were coming in fast at six o'clock and breaking away at four—right in line with my sights. They shot for the tail first and then swung to hit us amidships.

They were coming so close I could see the orange fire spit from the barrels of their 20 millimeter cannons.

I started firing as soon as I got one in range.

I caught my first MIG on the breakaway. I tracked him and kept firing short bursts. He got out about 900 yards before I saw he was out of control.

The last I saw of him he was spinning like crazy — straight down. One of the crewmen saw the plane crash.

Still they came.

Three minutes and four passes later, I spied this other baby coming in at 1:30, low. I picked him up 1200 yards away. I chopped into him with short, steady bursts.

That mig got out about 400 yards and keeled over on one side. I watched it go into a headlong dive and crash and explode on the mountain below.

That was the last shot I've had at a MIG. And I had about 100 rounds of ammo left in my belts.

The fighter escorts moved in and got the MIGs off us. But in the eight minutes they were on us they hurt the "No Sweat" plenty bad.

Both the number two and four engines were shot up and had to be feathered. The right tileron was shot out. The interphone conked out. The number two gas tank caught fire.

Our formation was broken up. Two of the four planes went down in flames. I saw one of them explode into the side of a mountain. Nobody saw anyone bail out.

The third ship had to turn back but it made it to Okinawa okay.

The fighters were gone and we were all alone. The pilot rang the alert bell—three times, the signal for "prepare to bail out."

All of a sudden I realized I was scared, I'd never jumped before.

Then the Commies on the ground started throwing flak at us. I couldn't hear it but I could see the little black puffs jumping up at us. Bursts caught us along the wings and engines.

But the bail-out signal didn't come.

It dawned on us that we were going to make our bomb run anyway. The pilot tried to catch up with the flight in front of us, but with two engines gone we couldn't make it.

We went it alone. It seemed we were suspended there in space. Like a big bird with a broken wing, we limped in over the bridges.

But we got them—direct hits, smack on the nose.

The "Old Man" sent word back that he was going to try to make it back to the lines, or as close as he could get us to them. But he told us to be prepared to jump on a second's notice.

The next hour was the longest I've spent in my young life.

I was shaking. I chewed my fingernails into the quicks. I broke out in a cold sweat.

I prayed.

We lost altitude. The captain had to depressurize the cabin.

It got so cold we nearly froze.

It was the most spectacular flying I've ever seen. We were just barely in the air when the plane broke out over the Han river flats and over an advance fighter strip.

The runway was much too short but we went in anyway. It was the last chance and we made it. The landing gear had been riddled and collapsed when we touched down.

We slid in on the belly and nose wheel.

The old "No Sweat" came to a halt with her nose over the road running alongside the airstrip.

But after 90 missions during the last war and I don't know how many in this one she had come through once more—she brought her crew home safely.

There were flak holes in the wings big enough to stick your head through. The sides looked like Swiss cheese.

I certainly don't want another day like April 12, but I want to stay in the Air Force and fly—even if it does mean more close scrapes.

You Don't Get A Second Try

At 19, Sgt. Billie G. Beach Joined the air force "to get away from the farm" in Mosheim, Tenn. He got away—as far, in fact, as Korea, where he rides in the gun turret of a B-29 of the 19th Bomb Group, stationed on Okinawa. At 21, the two Red MIG jet fighters he has shot down in combat are more than any other aerial gunner has accounted for. In the accompanying story, condensed from Air Force magazine, he takes you for a ride in a B-29 and a shooting match with the Russian MIGs.

Springfield Man Lost In Hawaii Navy Fire

HONOLULU, Sept. 13—(AP)—The navy has announced Russell J. Chambers, 51, Springfield, Mo., is "missing and believed to have died" in a fire which destroyed four civilian barracks Sunday.

The body of one man, burned beyond recognition, was found Sunday night. The Navy said Chambers, a machinist at the Pearl Harbor Navy yard, is the only one unaccounted for of 170 men who lived in the barracks.

Mrs. Laura E. Chambers of 419 East Bower St. Springfield, Mo., was notified today her husband is missing. Chambers had been employed at the Navy yard since April 10, 1951. He formerly worked as a machinist for the Santa Fe railroad at Albuquerque, N. M.

Four Perish In Wreck Of Plane Near Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 13—(AP)—Four men died last night when an Air Force training plane crashed and burned in a cotton field near municipal airport.

China Lobby Wangled Shells From United States Navy After Korean War Outbreak

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, September 13—There's something awfully peculiar about the way the Senate refuses to investigate graft in the sale of American war supplies to Nationalist China; also the manner in which some of these supplies went to Communist China.

This graft and the part played by the China lobby was exposed in this column three months ago, including huge fortunes made by Chinese in cornering the soybean market, money made by Chiang Kai-Shek's relatives in selling tin to the Communists, and a phony gasoline deal attempted by the Nationalist Air Force.

Furthermore, Sen. Lyndon "Lying-Down" Johnson's investigating committee has had some of these facts for months. But in keeping with his Texas nickname, he laid down on the job.

Meanwhile, here are more facts showing how an American admiral persuaded General MacArthur's headquarters to release 62,000 rounds of navy shells one month after the Korean war started — with a lush profit paid to S. G. Fassoulis and Miran Aprahamian, the 5 percenters for the China lobby.

Fassoulis and Aprahamian, the heads of the Commerce International Corporation, had hired Adm. Charles M. Cooke, Jr., together with 10 other retired American officers who are stationed on Formosa, in the dual capacity of advisers to Fassoulis and Aprahamian as well as advisers to Chiang Kai-Shek. They include Gen. R. L. Peterson, Cooke's son-in-law, Maj. C. F. Field; and did include Marine Gen. O. T. Pfeifer and Adm. H. L. Grosskopf, all retired. The latter two have withdrawn.

Arms Brokers

One month after the Korean war started and when the U. S. navy needed to conserve all its ammunition, Admiral Cooke induced MacArthur's headquarters to sell 22,000 rounds of three-inch navy shells plus 40,000 rounds of 20-mm shells and 40-mm. shells.

The story given out at the time was that the shells were scrap, about to be dumped into the sea. This, however, was not true. The price paid for the three-inch shells was $3 each — a bargain basement rate, because the original list surplus price was $36 each.

But the interesting thing is that Fassoulis and Aprahamian got a 12 per cent commission on the deal.

Significant also is the fact that it was the U. S. navy, not the Chinese navy, which was guarding Formosa at the time. In view of the long transport across the Pacific, therefore, it was the U. S. navy, not the Chinese, who stood to need reserve ammunition.

S. G. Fassoulis, when queried by this column, admitted the facts but claimed the shells were defective.

NOTE — Admiral Cooke is the officer who, while commander of U. S. naval forces in the western Pacific at the end of the war, used an LST boat to transport his auto to Shanghai to sell it on the black market. Naval enlisted men in Shanghai at that time were being jailed for selling cigarettes on the black market.

Washington Pipeline

General Ike has told friends confidentially that he would run as a Democrat if Taft gets the GOP nomination. He regards Taft's fight-China-now policy as disastrous and his election as a "catastrophe." . . . (If Taft's nominated, Ike may not get the chance to be a Democrat. Truman's friends are pulling every wire to get Taft the GOP nod, say their man is itching to take Taft on.) . . . Wily Senator Brewster of Maine, Taft's chief strategist, has a plan to nullify Eisenhower. He would send Taft to Europe, stage a conference with Eisenhower, then announce that Taft would follow any European policy the general proposed. . . . Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany is smarting under the reply given him when he asked to make a trip to see Truman. The White House answer was "Too busy." . . The American embassy in Moscow cables that Foreign Minister Vishinsky is virtually out, hasn't been seen around the foreign office for weeks. Andre Gromyko, the sallow diplomat of San Francisco, is now running the foreign office. (He's close to Stalin, too.)

Inside Baseball

Happy Chandler's job of baseball commissioner has been peddled to a whole row of big names —J. Edgar Hoover, General MacArthur, Gen. Emmett "Rosie" O'Donnell of the Air Force. All turned it down. . . . Jim Farley was proposed by the New York Yankees, but rejected on the first ballot at a closed-door caucus of the ball-team owners. . . . So was George Trautman of the minor leagues. . . . One handicap against Ohio's Gov. Frank Lausche was the backstage wire-pulling of Sen. John Bricker who doesn't want Lausche running against him for the Senate next year. This didn't help Lausche much. His best backer, incidentally, was John Galbreath, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates and a real-estate partner of Bricker's. (Lausche asked for a 10-year contract, instead of the seven years given Happy Chandler.) . . . Real trouble in selecting a baseball czar has been that the club owners wanted a "front" more than they wanted a two-fisted cleaner-up of baseball ills —namely, the eastern monopoly and the serflike draft of minor-league players.

Merry-Go-Round

Good news about polio: Doctors believe this year's epidemic is about over. Total cases this year will reach about 30,000, which, although too high, is a lot better than the tragic total of 42,000 two years ago. . . . Chief Justice Vinson has been staying home with a sick wife. Mrs. Vinson has been through a long long siege, but it is reported better. . . . Dynamic Sen. Jim Duff of Pennsylvania and the man he picked as governor of Pennsylvania, John S. Fine, will have one of their few meetings Saturday — at the wedding of beautiful Louise Steinman in Lancaster, Pa. (Duff and Fine haven't been seeing eye-to-eye since the election.) . . . Press reports that Phil Murray is quitting the CIO were exaggerated. He will be overwhelmingly re-elected at the CIO convention in New York in November, but will step down one year later. Chief CIO possibilities to succeed him are Walter Reuther of the Auto Workers and David McDonald of the Steelworkers, both able men. However, since these big unions are rivals, it's probable a neutral head of a smaller union will get the presidency — possibly Jake Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Even With New Drugs, Some Infections Are Hard to Stop

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Even today with all the new drugs which are now available, some infections are extraordinarily hard to clear up. A difficult example of this kind was sent to me by Mrs. E., who writes:

"The doctor has been treating my six-year-old daughter for what he says is pus in the urine for the past two years. When this pus was first discovered, the doctor said it was a streptococcus infection.

"Through laboratory tests, the germ was isolated and reaction of drugs tested on it. However, no medicine seems to get it out completely and it seems to return so easily with a slight cold and even sometimes without a cold.

"He has given her sulfa, penicillin, aureomycin and other drugs. These usually help the infection for a time and then the germ becomes resistant to the drug.

"Is this infection anything serious, and if it were not treated, would it be outgrown? The doctor has had X-rays taken and finds no obstruction. He also had my daughter's tonsils removed several months ago, but the infection is still there."

Now this little girl has apparently been treated very well. When pus is present in the urine, it means that there are germs present somewhere in the urinary tract between the kidneys and the external opening.

It is advisable, as was done here, to identify the germs and to try them out against some of the modern drugs. After this is done, it is possible to try one of the drugs to which the germs seem most sensative, and this offers the best hope of complete recovery.

Resistance Lower

In this little girl the source of infection evidently cannot be discovered, although X-rays and other studies have been made. It is true that such infections sometimes come from infection elsewhere in the body, such as infected tonsils.

The fact that the child gets worse when she has a cold quite likely means only that her resistance is lowered at such times. Evidently the germs are quite resistant to most of the drugs which can now be used, and become more resistant to those drugs after a time.

It would not be safe to assume that the condition would clear up of itself or simply be outgrown. The proper thing to do is to continue with what treatments or other measures the doctor may recommend.

'In-Laws' Should be Treated Same as Your Own Family

Want to get along with your "in-laws"? Then the easiest rule to follow is to treat your "in-laws" in every way just as well as you treat your own family.

Your mother-in-law is coming to visit? Then don't regard it as a tragedy unless you also feel imposed upon when your own mother comes to see you.

Your father-in-law is inclined to give you unwanted advice? You don't have to take the advice, but you can regard it with as much tolerance as you do the advice your own father is prone to hand out at times.

Your "in-laws" seem to think more of your mate than they do of you? Well, you accept the fact that you are your own parents' particular pride and joy, don't you?

Your "in-laws" don't approve of everything you do? Your own parents don't either, do they? But that doesn't make you turn against them.

Your mother-in-law annoys you by wanting to get her son or daughter off to herself occasionally? Well, don't you sometimes enjoy seeing your family just on your own—and don't they enjoy having you part of the family circle now and then?

Your "In-Laws" Drop In Unexpectedly?

Your "in-laws" have the habit of dropping in on you unexpectedly now and then? Well, you want your own parents to feel free to do that, don't you?

Your "in-laws" spoil the children, do they? Well, aren't you pretty good-natured about your own parents' thinking their grandchildren hung the moon and treating them as though they did?

Your "in-laws" sometimes say things that anoy you? How about giving them the benefit of the doubt, assuming that even though their words may not always be tactful, their intentions are of the best? You're that understanding of your own parents, aren't you?

Looking Backward

One of the big press bureaus in the east with headquarters at Boston has made a rush call on the Sedalia Booster club for Sedalia views to be used in connection with the visit of President Howard Taft to the Missouri State fair on September 30. The request was granted.

Five hundred men with teams were at work with road equipment on 20 miles of road on the Sedalia - Springfield highway. Farmers from the southern part of Benton county and business men participated.

County Recorder Walter Morey and family, who had been spending the summer in Colorado for the benefit of his health, arrived home he being apparently considerably improved.

Attorneys C. E. Yeater and Lee Montgomery left for Jefferson City to argue a case in the United States circuit court.

Prof. Louis A. Bell, instructor in chemistry in the Sedalia high school, with his family returned from St. Louis where they spent the summer vacation.

The farm demonstration department of the University of Missouri was scheduled to make a demonstration at the farm of J. Ed. Hall, four miles west of La Monte on Friday, Sept. 15.

In conclusion the game leader Mrs. Norbert Langkop led in playing a game. Mrs. Stahl was presented with the hostess gifts.

Autos Damaged In a Collision

Damage resulted to two automobiles which were in collision at 6th and Ohio at 8:23 a.m. today. Occupants of the vehicles escaped injury.

The left front end of the 1941 Ford coupe driven by R. T. Higgins, 320½ West Broadway, and the left front fender of the 1947 Hudson sedan driven by John E. Bohon, 1211 South Carr, were badly damaged. Higgins was headed south on Ohio and Bohon was driving east on 6th when the accident occurred.

Police made an investigation. No arrests were made as the car owners settled their differences at the wreck.

Forfeits Bond on Running a Stop Sign

Four overtime parking violators failed to appear in police court this morning and their cash bonds of $1.00 each were ordered forfeited by Judge Jerry Trotter.

Robert Hoard, Green Ridge, charged with running a stop sign at Main and Missouri, forfeited a $5.00 bond when he failed to appear.

Private Jack J. Winley In Marine Course

Private Jack J. Winley, 23, 109 East Sixth, Sedalia, was recently selected to attend a marine engineman course at the army's transportation school, the Transportation Center, Fort Eustis, Va.

While at the school, he will be trained to operate and maintain diesel and gas engines and auxiliary equipment aboard small craft operated within harbors, canals, and inland waterways by the Transportation corps.

A former student at Smith-Cotton high school, Private Winley was ordered to active military service last May. He completed basic training at the Transportation Replacement Training Center at Fort Eustis before being selected to receive specialized technical training at the school.

Dangerous "Squatter"

RANGOON—(AP)—A "squatter" at the home of Burmese president Sao Shwe Thaike recently was ejected by strategy and at no small risk to the evicters.

"He" was a deadly krait whose bite is known to kill within a few minutes. The snake established claims to territory beneath the golden throne of Thibaw, last of the Burmese kings, now set up in the main hall of the president's house.

A local newspaper reporting the incident said the snake was "well behaved except that it used to scare away with a loud and menacing hiss" anyone approaching the throne.

"WE go now," said Police Chief Jose Montera, as Holly gave him back his pen. "I will drive past the Porters' house and you can leave your message."

He kept his word and she gave the note to the house boy who came running out to the car.

They drove for a long way along the coast where the unbelievably blue sea shone between the leaning gray boles of coconut trees, until they came to a beautiful hotel where they stopped, went for a swim and had lunch. Then they drove back into the mountains, through banana, coffee, and sisal plantations, past fields of sugar cane, through jungles where orchids grew wild and sapped the strength of great tropical trees.

All afternoon he encouraged her to talk about the United States, and she did so, stressing the fact that in the States one could speak and write as he pleased on any subject without fear of punishment.

"When people go to foreign countries and write what they see and hear," she said, "that isn't spying, or plotting against that government."

"I could come to your country and write what I pleased about your ways and your government?" he asked, incredulously.

"You bet you could," she told him earnestly. "You'd be surprised how many people come to our country and then go back home and write uncomplimentary things about us!"

"And you do not care?" he asked, still unbelieving.

"Not only that, we buy what they have written, and read their frank comments on us and our way of life, and usually we laugh about it."

"Here, it is not so!" Jose said it with finality, and Holly's hopes dropped. He waved his hand toward a large white building in magnificently landscaped grounds, with a view of mountains on one side and sea on the other. "That is the Governor's house. Some day I shall live there—we shall live there, you and I!"

"But if you don't marry Carmelita," said Holly, "maybe her father—"

"Senor Hernandez will see that I become governor in time," he said, confidently. "Senor Hernandez has much, much money to buy votes for me. You will like it—being the governor's wife, Senorita. Jewels and beautiful gowns and balls where you will be the hostess. Me—I grew up in a house like one of those—" he pointed to a cluster of adobe houses with palm thatched roofs. "My mother was like that one in the field. But I do not stay like that."

Holly sighed. She had told Jose she would marry him in return for Steve's life and freedom. And with Steve feeling toward her the way she knew he must, it didn't make much difference what she did.

JOSE'S home was in a valley, with purple mountains all around. It was a low house of pale green stucco, with a moss-green, tiled roof. In the center there was a patio with a tiled floor in beautiful, mosaic patterns, with a splashing fountain. All around the patio ran a gallery from which one entered the various rooms of the house. From the roof of the gallery, and from beautifully wrought iron hooks on the posts supporting the roof, hung woven baskets in which were orchids in bloom.

It was a beautiful place, quiet, well-staffed with soft-footed native men and women who made her feel like visiting royalty. Yes, she could be happy married to a man who owned a place like that—providing he was Steve!

Dinner was served on the patio—a regular banquet of native dishes which Jose explained to her as they ate. Then he called the cook and the neat young man who had served them and he talked to them in Spanish. They smiled delightedly and bowed to Holly and said something to her in Spanish with many gestures. Then they withdrew.

"What was that all about?" asked Holly.

"I told them you are to be their new mistress," he informed her, calmly.

"Oh," said Holly, and an apprehensive chill struck her.

COFFEE and cigarets were brought, and they sat by the fountain in reclining chairs while the tropic dusk came down around them suddenly, like a purple curtain falling on a stage. She suddenly became afraid.

Jose leaned toward her. "This will be all yours," he whispered. "You will marry me—tomorrow?"

"Give me a little time," she begged.

"Time? With Jose Montera making love to you?"

"I've always said I wouldn't marry a man I didn't love," she said, desperately.

"But how can you know you love a man if you are not married to him?" he asked with an indulgent laugh. "First you marry, and then love comes!"

He put his arms around her, and at the touch she pulled back.

"Oh, no, no, chiquita," he laughed. "Do not draw away! Come closer—closer into my arms—"

"It's no use, Jose," she cried. "I can't go through with it. I—I said I'd marry you, and I'll keep my promise, but—please don't touch me!"

"But you are just shy," he laughed again. "If I kiss you a few times—deep, long kisses—you will want—"

There was a sudden commotion, servants' voices raised in vociferous Spanish, and Holly and Jose turned.

Eyewitness Report:

In Red China There is 'A Frightful Reign of Terror'

Worker Who Escaped Month Ago Describes Nightmare Life Under the Communist Rule

COMMUNIST TEXTILE WORKER: Under Red rule, pay has decreased, but hours—and industrial accidents—have been increased.

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

MILAN, Italy—(NEA)—A Chinese worker who fled the Red terror of his native land says the Communist regime kills or imprisons everyone it distrusts and exploits to the limit the people it trusts.

The worker is Wang Chung, who was a delegate to the Milan convention of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions. His eyewitness account, one of the first ever to emerge from today's Red China, was given to the delegates.

Only a little more than a month ago, Wang was in China. He made his way out by disguising himself as a small-town peddler, contacting hide-outs of the resistance movement and eventually crawling over the Hong Kong border under bristling barbed wire and Communist gunfire.

In pre-Communist China, he declares, the working hours were eight to nine a day. The Reds boosted them to 10 and 12. China's entry into the Korean War pushed them even higher, to a maximum of 16 a day. A skilled machinist, Wang describes his life:

"I remember that for months on end last winter I did not even have a chance to speak with my wife and kids. I was off for work at six in the morning when they were still in bed. I finished work at nine at night, and immediately there was a two or three hour session in a group (political) meeting. When I returned at midnight the family was already sound asleep."

Wages were not increased proportionately with hours, he adds. Quite the reverse. In 1947 Wang drew 600 pounds of rice a month for nine hours' work a day. This year, under Red rule, he got 200 pounds for 16 hours. But even this was only the nominal pay. After deducting taxes, duties, and various "voluntary" contributions he took home from 100 to 150 pounds of rice a month.

One hundred pounds of rice, says Wang, is barely enough for two bowls of very thin rice porridge per meal for each of the five in his family for a month.

Poor pay and long hours have induced widespread malnutrition and industrial fatigue which have vastly increased the frequency of industrial accidents. In Wang's machine shop, accidents were almost a daily occurrence.

Wang reports that Communist agents long ago wormed their way into every labor union and converted them all into "agencies of the secret police, which has brought to my country a frightful reign of terror."

The chief union aims now are to compile a black list of all anti-Communist elements in a particular factory, and to hold frequent mass meetings at which union leaders strike out names (marking men for death) when the list grows too long.

Adds Wang:

"I remember some of the meetings in which some of the resistance fellows were condemned to death with a great many innocent workers. Later on, when there were too many 'suspicious' elements, the Communist agents sent in the names to the secret police, who arrested them and shot them at will.

"I used to tremble at nights when police vans drove up to my doorstep, or when my neighbors' doors were knocked on in the small hours before dawn."

Wang recalls the Red regulation of Feb. 21, 1951, which gave legal sanction to the widespread purges and massacres that have caught the attention of the outside world. He says they were the Communist response to great popular discontent over China's participation in the Korean War.

He cites instances he knows about personally:

"A next door neighbor in Shanghai came from a village, and possessed about five acres of land. He was branded a landlord, an exploiter of the peasants, a man-eater in the countryside. . . He was taken back to his village and buried alive before his family.

"A fellow worker in my factory was arrested on April 27. He was skinned alive for failing to admit his own guilt."

Wang says the Reds acknowledge having liquidated 1,500,000 anti-Communists, but that the number murdered is actually much greater and includes thousands of innocents.

"Anyone found uncooperative in the slightest manner can be arrested and shot at any moment in any locality," he asserts.

After two years of these horrors, Wang reports his countrymen bittery disillusioned.

"I'm sure I am voicing the unanimous opinion of my terror-stricken people when I say we prefer war to Soviet tyranny. In war there is hope for peace and freedom. In tyranny there can only be tremor, agony, despair and perpetual slavery.

"And so it transpires that millions of Chinese have again taken up arms and joined ranks with guerrilla units in the hills, around the lakes, along the coasts and in village hide-outs. . . Hundreds of thousands of workers in factories and mines are in the resistance movement. . . The day will not be far distant when the Chinese Iron Curtain will be smashed to pieces."

Tale Of No Tail

RANGOON—(AP)—This is a tale which ends literally with the end of a tail.

A Burmese peasant Maung Kyat was jogging along the dusty road between Mandalay and Tada-U in his bullock-drawn cart when he shot 25 feet into air. The cart, passing over a rebel-hidden landmine, had touched of an explosion.

Maung Kyat was unhurt, but the bull's tail was severed.

Apples should be stored in a cool, well ventilated room during the winter. The temperature of the storage room should range around 40 degrees or slightly lower.

Boyle Declares E. Merle Young Volunteer Worker

Congress "outlaw the technique of completely baseless and defamatory attacks on individuals which go beyond the bounds of campaigning" in political contests.

Declaring that "American campaigns have never been noted for politeness and the use of the kid glove," the chairman of the Democratic national committee added:

"And this technique which is used to attack the loyalty and patriotism of decent citizens and faithful public servants is not in the American tradition. It is an imported technique which has already begun to poison our political life. It must be stamped out."

Boyle's proposal was in a statement prepared for a hearing before a Senate elections committee headed by Senator Gillette (D-Iowa).

At the same time another Senate investigating subcommittee began looking into charges — denied by Boyle — that his political influence may have figured in Reconstruction Finance corporation (RFC) loans.

Boyle offered Gillette's group "full cooperation" of the Democratic committee in studying possible steps "which can be taken to strengthen our federal election laws and to prevent the type of corruption of the elective process which members of both parties agree has occurred in recent elections."

Criticism Voiced

The Democratic party leadership Boyle said, "is opposed to the back street type of campaign recently exposed and properly condemned by this (election) committee."

The committee recently put out a report criticizing sharply some aspects of the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign in which Republican John Marshall Butler defeated Millard E. Tydings for reelection.

For committee consideration in "the problems of improving our election laws," Boyle suggested::

Extending such laws to cover primary or convention campaigns; "realistic adjustments" of the ceilings on campaign contributions and expenditures; new methods of financing campaigns; free television time — on proposed educational channels — to allow federal office candidates "to discuss campaign issues fully"; establishment of campaign "standards" to make the candidate responsible for the actions of his aides; laws requiring campaign literature, recordings, film and so on to "show completely their sponsorship, who paid for them, and who printed or produced them."

However, even if such laws were enacted, Boyle said he did not believe "fair, honest and truly representative elections" could be achieved "until all the eligible voters go to the polls and vote."

He proposed that Congress consider "ways to make registration and voting easier and simpler and . . . to provide inducements to vote or penalties for not voting."

Talk Shifts in Redistricting

Hearings to be Continued in The State Senate

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 13—(AP) — Congressional redistricting has started down the rocky legislative road.

Hearings opened yesterday on a bill to trim Missouri's 13 districts to 11. Other hearings were set for today and next Monday.

Senate leaders hope to have the bill out of committee and ready for floor debate next week. If possible they'd like to push it through to passage next week but that might not pan out—it will have to weather Republican attacks first.

The house adjourned until September 25 to give the senate a chance to work on redistricting. Speaker Roy Hamlin (D) of Hannibal agreed with senate leaders that redistricting and road program bills should have priority in the fall session.

He expressed hopes the lawmakers would keep their sights set on only the most important legislation, get it cleaned up in a hurry and go home.

As resdistricting work started, Leo Politte of Washington, Mo., and Tom Sneed, Jr., of Osage county offered a plan to make Rep. Clarence Cannon's northeastern Missouri district Democratic by 20,000 votes.

They would shift Maries and Osage counties from the proposed 11th district of central Missouri to the ninth of northeastern Missouri. Then they'd put four Republican counties—Mercer, Grundy, Putnam and Sullivan—in the proposed sixth district of northwestern Missouri, making it more Republican.

They also would shift the two northernmost Democratic townships of St. Louis county into Cannon's district.

Cannon is the dean of the Missouri delegation and chairman of the powerful House appropriations committee.

The committee took no action.

Asked Call To White House

other agency. But he said it had been necessary to defer some of its scheduled payments to avert delinquency.

"It was a loan that had to be looked at carefully," Williams said.

Williams, questioned by Senator Mundt (R-SD), brought into the inquiry the name of Frank Prince, a relative of Rep. Boykin (D-Ala). Prince was dismissed recently as assistant RFC loan manager.

Boykin has asked the subcommittee to investigate published reports that he and Prince were involved in a scheme to get an RFC loan for the Mobile (Ala.) Paper Mill company under terms which stripped its owner of control.

Williams said Prince was on the SWPC staff when Lithofold got its first government loan, and helped approve the application.

The investigation comes on the heels of one by a Senate banking subcommittee which accused the RFC of yielding to political influence—some of it from White House officials, and some from Boyle.

Boyle, who has said he is willing to testify anytime the subcommittee wants him to, has denied any improper actions.

Hoey has disclosed that, among other things, his group has its sights on relationships between Lithofold and James P. Finnegan, former internal revenue collector at St. Louis.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has published contentions that Finnegan—while on the federal payroll—drew $1,000 a month from Lithofold to influence the RFC.

H. C. Salveter Talks to the Kiwanians on Constitution

Attorney Henry C. Salveter spoke to the members of the Sedalia Kiwanis club about the Constitution of the United States at the club's meeting, held in the ambassador room of the Bothwell hotel Thursday.

Salveter was introduced by A. H. Wilks, program chairman. Wilks said that September is the 164th anniversary of the U. S. constitution and the program was being presented to all Kiwanis clubs in the nation.

Salveter reviewed early American history, explained difficulties encountered with the Articles of Confederation, with money and trade and then the trouble of adopting the Constitution.

The Articles of Confederation was without power, but aided foreign relations. At that time such men as Washington, Hamilton, and Jefferson forsaw the need of unity if the states were to avoid confusion.

The first step to organize a constitution was taken by Washington, who called a meeting of leaders in the governments of the colonies. Few attended. Those attending decided to call a convention with the purpose of drawing-up a constitution.

The farmers argued over many matters, but in September nine states signed the document, which provided for the three branches of govrnment we have today. They are executive, judicial and legislative.

Regulation Plan

The convention set up a plan to regulate money and commerce and obtain land outside the 13 colonies.

The original document did not contain the Bill of Rights, but they were added soon.

Salveter pointed out that the Supreme court has been perhaps the most important of the three branches of government in preserving the constitution and the principles of freedom and the rights of man.

In the United States, he said, a person is free to determine his destiny.

Although our government may cost more to operate than other governments it offers more than the Communist government, which continually hits at ours. In America, he said, our constitution does not restrict race, religion, color or nationality; it is free to all.

Guests at Thursday's meeting were W. R. Henegar, Jefferson City; A. L. Kelly, St. Louis; John Lackey, T. V. Collier and C. P. Foster, all of St. Louis and guests of Guy Bailey. A. H. Wilks had as his guest Sam Harlan. Gene Williams was with George H. Scruton.

R. A. Malone reminded club members of Kid Day, September 22. The Rev. Roy Bowers led the club singing. Jack Crawford was the accompanist.

Prisoners Flee Mexico Jail

MEXICO, Mo., Sept. 13—(AP)—Two prisoners fled from the Audrain county jail this morning after pulling a gun on two trustys.

They are Jack Lee McWithey, 22, and Robert H. McWithey, 20, brothers from Springfield, Ill. They were being held for trial on an armed robbery charge.

Mrs. Marion Mundy, daughter of Sheriff Ross Vance, was in the jail office when she heard the two trustys yell. They told her that they were changing mattresses in one of the cells when the brothers accosted them. One of the prisoners pulled a gun and locked the two trustys in a cell.

They then fled through a side door, which had been left unlocked by the trustys while cleaning the jail.

Mrs. Mundy, who was alone, spread the alarm. Her father is in California returning a prisoner. Deputy Sheriff John Paul Jones was in the circuit courtroom.

The men were wearing blue jeans. One had a brown sport shirt the other a striped one.

Robert was described as five feet, nine inches tall, weighing 135 pounds with two hearts tattoed on his right arm and an anchor on the left arm. His brother, Jack, was described as about six feet tall, weighing 165 pounds and having blond hair.

They were charged with first degree robbery with a deadly weapon as the result of a service station robbery September 1. At the time of their arrest, state highway patrolmen said they had admitted burglaries at Joplin and Neosho in Missouri.

Suggests Two Places For Medics School

would be more available in a city.

David Proctor, city counselor of Kansas City, urged an end to the controversy over site of the school. He said Missouri needs the school far more than Kansas City or Columbia needs the expansion the school would bring.

He said he didn't think the legislature had any authority to direct the university board of curators to establish a four-year school or where to put it.

But the legislature can appropriate the money and then if the curators do nothing, the legislature can step in to see that the school is built.

Yesterday Dr. Stubbs suggested the university administration did not want the school established because the high cost of operating a medical school would endanger the budgets of other university functions.

Says Better Telephone Service Is Had by The Dial System

"prior to the time when the company can increase the quantity of service."

Towles replied there was no question of fairness involved.

"We are serving 8,000 subscribers there with a very good grade of service. There is only 1.8 per cent of that number that can't get service at present," he added.

Testimony revealed there were 178 unfilled orders for phone service in Cape Girardeau in January, 1951, and the company estimates that number will be cut to 150 by the end of this year. Requests for a higher grade of service numbered 463 in January and will rise to an estimated 500 by the end of the year.

Under questioning by McClintock, Towles admitted that theoretically there should be rate differentials between cities where service is poor. But, he argued, his company does not render poor service anywhere in Missouri.

Thirty-six Aboard Missing Plane

PERPIGNAN, France, Sept. 13—(AP)—Airport officials here said today 36 passengers and three crewmen are aboard a French DC-3 plane missing on its run over the Mediterranean from Toulouse, France, to Gran, North Africa.

Authorities at Toulouse said earlier there were only eight passengers and three crewmen.

Gets $2,000 Verdict For Loss of Teeth

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13—(AP)—Ora Thompson's two front teeth have cost the Public Service company $2,000.

Thompson, 26, a machinist, won that amount in a decision from the Court of Appeals yesterday.

He said he lost the teeth when a drunk knocked them out during a dispute on a Public Service company bus two years ago. He contended the man obviously was drunk and should not hove been allowed on the vehicle.

Thompson won $3,000 in his original suit in circuit court but the Appeals Court trimmed the figure.

Telephones Seized in Raids to be Destroyed

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13—(AP)— Ten telephones, seized in handbook raids here, will be destroyed as gambling paraphernalia.

Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood gave the order yesterday despite the Southwestern Bell Telephone company's plea that the equipment was hard to get.

The judge said the company should have made a point of finding out why so many telephones were being used at one address.

to bring back the wandering gambler.

McDonald and Gross left Atlantic City about the same time—2:15 a.m. (EST)—but in separate autos.

The district attorney arrived at his Brooklyn office at 5:15 a.m. and—tired out after two nights of hunting Gross—went to sleep.

McDonald said any possible bailing of Gross again will be up to Kings county Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, who ordered the $25,000 bail forfeited.

Plan Horseback Ride of 488 Miles

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 13—(AP)—A Springfield, Ill., couple today was enroute to Springfield, Mo., where they plan to mount riding horses for a 488 mile trip to their new home in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Chestnut think it will take three weeks to a month to ride to their new home in Arlington, Tex.

The couple began the first leg of their trip yesterday with their horses in a friend's cattle truck to avoid heavy traffic in Illinois. They've mapped their route by way of Vinita, Okla., Sherman and Grapevine, Texas, and plan to avoid large cities and stick to the open road.

Walkout at Quaker Oats Plant

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 13—(AP)—Production came to a standstill at the Quaker Oats plant in St. Joseph yesterday when some 400 union employes left their jobs.

Cecil R. Martin, the plant's general manager, called it a "strike."

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson and daughter, Ruth, 1309 East Boonville, returned home recently after visiting their son and brother, Pfc. Dale Anderson, who is stationed at Shepard Field, Tex. From there they went to Corpus Christi to be guests of Mrs. Anderson's oldest son, Marvin, and family.

'The Bravest Soldier I Ever Met . . .

That's How Buddies He Saved Describe Pvt. Luther H. Story

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—"Private First Class Story was the bravest soldier I ever met."

That was the simple claim of Corp. Charles O. Courtney of Monroe, N. C., after Pvt. Luther H. Story had helped save his life and the lives of other members of his squad during the earliest and fiercest fighting of the Korean campaign.

Story became the 13th man to win a Congressional Medal of Honor in the Korean fighting. And according to experts on bravery awards, Story's gallant action places him among the top ranking of all-time great U.S. heroes.

At 17, Story enlisted in the army from his home town of Americus, Ga., in 1948. After service in Guam and Saipan he joined the occupation forces in Japan. When Korea was invaded by the Reds he was as green and as unprepared for combat as the rest of his outfit, which had been rushed from Japan to help stem the advance of the Communist aggressors.

But by September 1, 1950, after having been pushed back to the Naktong river with the rest of the UN troops, Story was a lean, hardened, combatwise, infantryman who knew well the ways of the foe.

He also had a reputation as "a guy with plenty of guts," although before the fighting began he was considered a pretty ordinary kind of soldier. On this day, however, he proved his courage as few men in military history have been able to prove it.

He had led his weapons squad to a rocky ridge overlooking the Naktong river. The enemy began storming the position, trying desperately to keep Story's men from digging in, and in the first rush his machine gunner was wounded.

Grabbing the gun from the bleeding man Story stood up and poured devastating fire into the charging North Koreans. In a few moments more than 100 of the enemy lay scattered on the hillside. The charge was broken.

Later that day, moving to a new position he had been ordered to take, Story spotted an enemy truck loaded with troops and towing an ammunition trailer coming down the road. He told his men to find cover. But Story crouched in a ditch until the truck came abreast of him.

Then he stepped boldly onto the road and calmly began lobbing grenades into the vehicle. It slowed and a furious volley of shots aimed at him rang out.

When he had pitched all his grenades, the ammunition trailer was still intact. A few shots were still coming from the truck. Story quickly ducked into the brush, found his men, got another armful of grenades, and proceeded to finish the job.

The noise drew other Red units to the scene. Story was forced to lead his men back to another unit from his outfit and together they tried to advance through a rice field. Corp. Courtney describes the ensuing action:

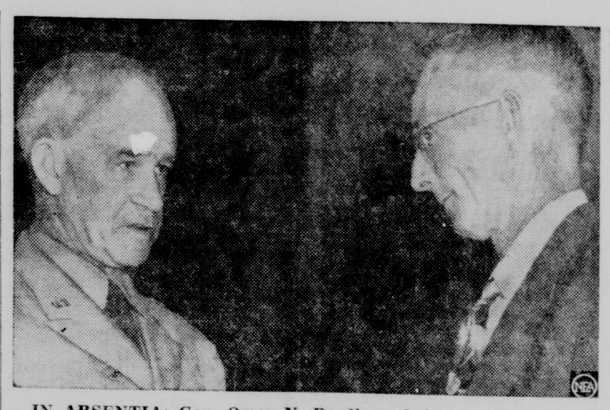
"While moving through a rice paddy they began a Banzai attack on us, but it didn't last long because we shot hell out of it. But there was a machine gun in front of us which began taking a real toll of the men.

"I found Story and asked him about pulling out. He told me that if we wanted to leave we could, but that he was staying. He said he would cover for us."

Pvt. Story was wounded himself, but ignoring it he kept up a steady firing from all weapons he carried. As Courtney was moving back, aiding some wounded, the enemy made another charge. Alone, Story fought off the attack. It gave the rest time to get to safety.

When last seen he was firing furiously and shouting advice to his retreating comrades. He is still carried on army roles as missing in action.

Story was unmarried and, presumed dead, leaves behind his parents, and sister and brother.



IN ABSENTIA: Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, presents Medal of Honor to M. H. Story of Americus, Ga., for his son, Pvt. Luther H. Story, killed in action in Korea in one of history's most gallant actions.

'Sugar Ray' Robinson is Again 'Champ'

Greatest Battle Of Career in Fight With Turpin

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson was middleweight champion of the world again today, a proud champion of a proud division, after having fought perhaps the greatest battle of his career in stopping Randy Turpin of England in the 10th round of a savage brawl at the Polo Grunds.

Two months and two days after he had lost the crown to the 23-year-old Briton in London, the pride of Harlem came back, bloody and tired, to unleash an onslaught which beat Turpin to the verge of insensibility and forced referee Goldstein to spare the short-time title holder further punishment with only eight seconds to go in the final, pulse stirring round last night.

Robinson weighed 157 ½ pounds, to 159 for Turpin. The bout was scheduled for 15 rounds.

The largest crowd ever to witness a fight in this country outside the heavyweight division—61,370—packed the huge ball yard and poured $767,630.96 into the coffers of the International Boxing club to watch the peerless Negro score the 129th triumph of his 133-fight career.

The gate was expected to go at least a million dollars with movie and theater television rights contributing a minimum of $225,000. When all of the returns are in Robinson is expected to pick up about $240,000, his richest purse for his 30-minute workout and Turpin about $200,000.

Just Small Doubt

There was only one small doubt to mar as dramatic a comeback as the ring has seen. Turpin, a gamester and a very fine fighter, thought he should have been permitted to finish that final, desperate round, weather a few more of Sugar Ray's lethal blows, take his rest and come out for the 11th round.

It is to bad it had to end that way. A clean knockout, either way, would have been preferable, or a clean decision. But this observer was of the profound opinion that Goldstein, one of the most competent officials now operating, stopped the dangerous contest none to soon.

In his dressing room after the fight Turpin declared the referee should not have stopped it.

"I was perfectly keen," Turpin said. "There were only eight seconds to go in the round and I was covering up. I heard the count clearly and you notice I got up well before it was finished."

Robinson said he didn't want to take any chances with the referee stopping the fight after his left eyebrow had been cut.

"It was do or die," said Sugar Ray, "he hurt me several times but not in the tenth."

Until that instant when he brought an earth shaking bellow from the great crowd by downing Turpin in the 10th, Sugar Ray had done no better, in this reporter's opinion, than break even against the rugged Turpin.

At any rate, there should be no serious international disputes about the ending. As a matter of fact, had it been a normal, mid-week fight at any point in this country, the referee undoubtedly would have called a halt somewhat sooner than Goldstein did. Turpin was out on his leaden feet, his hands hanging helplessly at his side and only his fighter's brain ticking feebly.

Wet Gridiron Forces Tigers To Go Indoors

A wet gridiron forced the Smith Cotton Tigers inside Wednesday afternoon and cancelled the final outdoor session of defensive and blocking drills before the opening game with the Marshall Owls at Liberty Park Friday night.

However, the Bengals studied defensive patterns and went through motions. Monday night a hour and a half skull practice was held with the same being held again Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday afternoon the first game-dress practice of the year is scheduled, weather permitting. In this drill the Bengals will go over offensive plays and defensive patterns.

Only one serious injury has hit the Tigers to date. Bob Lane, senior halfback, received a shoulder separation when he slipped Tuesday night. He will probably see some action against Marshall, but Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow said it would be limited.

Going over the prospects for Friday night Dow said the boys were showing much improvement, but with only a week of serious practice it would be hard to predict the outcome of Friday night's clash, since Smith-Cotton has yet to be under scrimmage or game fire this year.

Schroeder May Be Drafted

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13—(AP)—Whether he wants to or not, Ted Schroeder of California may be drafted for duty with the American Davis Cup team.

That was the opinion of many today as the surprise laden Pacific southwest tennis tournament swung into another quarter final stage featuring Frank Sedgman, Australia's No. 1 Davis Cup player and 1951 American champion.

Sedgman was booked to meet the man he succeeded as the U. S. titlist, Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in one quarter final, and domestic rivalry bloomed in another match between Vic Seizas of Philadelphia and Herb Flam of Los Angeles.

But main tennis talk centered on Schroeder and his well earned triumph yesterday over the No. 2 Aussie Cup star, Ken McGregor.

Durable Ted, always the competitor, defeated McGregor before a wildly cheering gallery, 6-4, 0-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. It was more Schroeder's play than the score itself which gave rise to the Davis Cup talk.

"It Ted can play tennis like that, with only four or five days practice, why shouldn't he be on the Davic Cup team?" half queried, half demanded Perry T. Jones, secretary of the tennis patrons association and the man resposible for Califronia's "mass production" of net stars for the past 25 years.

Semi-Pro Teams Get $26,354.65 From Tourney

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 13 — (AP) —A total of $26,354.65 has been distributed to teams in the recent 17th annual National Semipro baseball tournament, the National Baseball Congress said.

To the title-winning Sinton, Tex., Plymouth Oilers went the guaranteed $10,000 purse, plus mileage allowances, said Ray Dumont, Congress president.

He reported that rain-outs of five night sessions, resulting in play two nights shy of last year's tourney, caused a 5.6 per cent reduction in prize money.

The runner-up Atwater, Calif., packers received $5,014.17 plus mileage; the third-place Lafayette, Ind., Red Sox $2,016.47 plus mileage.

Tied for fourth, the Ft. Campbell, Ky., 11th Airborne Division Angles, the Camp Lejeune, N. C., Marine Corps champions, and the Fort Wayne, Ind., Capeharts split $3,024.69 plus mileage. The Capeharts lost the title, held at Fort Wayne four straight years.

Four teams in a seventh place tie—the Casa Grande, Ariz., Cotton Kings, Superior, Neb., Knights, Camp Pickett, Va., 43rd Division Red Wings, and South Amboy, N. J., Briggs—divided $2,016.44 plus mileage.

Mileage allowances, Dumont said, totaled $3,780.88. Bonuses paid to teams finishing out of the prize money totaled $475, he added.

VIC FLINT — A FATEFUL CALL — BY MICHAEL O'MALLEY

Stengel Says Yankees Will Regain Lead

Cardinals to Play Giants And Braves Today

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Managers Al Lopez of Cleveland and Casey Stengel of New York, recovered from Tuesday's ordeal at the hands of revenge-bent second divisioners, were beating their chests today and all but predicting the American League pennant.

Lopez, who spent yesterday's off-day playing 18 holes of golf, was especially confident as his Indians moved on to Washington for a night affair.

"Naturally, I hated to lose the second game in Philadelphia," he said. "But I'm not kicking. We're in first place and we all feel we're there to stay."

Stengel, who admitted the Yankees "were awful" in dropping both ends of a double header to the tail-end Browns Tuesday, predicted his team would regain the lead.

The Yankees fell into second place when Cleveland split with the sixth place Athletics and took a full-game lead.

"We're not through by a long shot," Casey said. "We'll get back to the top. We came back before and we will do it again."

Stengel nominated Ed Lopat (19-7) to pitch against the Detroit Tigers this afternoon. He will be opposed by Virgil Trucks (9-8). Bob Lemon (17-11) will pitch for Cleveland against the Senators' Bob Porterfield (5-8).

Boston Beats Detroit

While the Indians and Yankees were takin things easy, Boston's third place Red Sox crept closer to the leaders, edging out the Tigers, 2-1. The triumph moved them to within four and a half games of the Tribe.

Bill Wight won the 10-inning hurling duel from Detroit's Ted Gray when Johnny Pesky slammed a one-out triple and scored the deciding run on Clyde Vollmer's long fly.

In the only other American League game, Chicago's White Sox blanked the Senators, 3-0. Billy Pierce stopped the Nats with six hits for his 13th victory. Orestes Minoso drove in two of the victor's runs.

The New York Giants' faint flag hopes were kept alive when Cincinnati slapped a 6-3 defeat upon the National League leading Brooklyn Dodgers. The loss cut the Brooks' margin over the Giants to five and a half games.

The Giants were rained out of their scheduled game in St. Louis and will play the game off this afternoon. It is the final game of the year between the two clubs. It took quite a bit of doing to arrange the game since the Cards previously had scheduled a game tonight against the Boston Braves.

As the situation now stands, the Cards will play the Giants in the afternoon and the Braves at night. League President Ford Frick gave the Cards permission to attempt this unprecerented day-and-night doubleheader against two different clubs.

Walker Cooper blasted homers Nos. 17 and 18 and batted in five runs to lead the Braves to a 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Ralph Kiner hamered his 39th home run and added two singles to account for four RBI's and lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to an 8-6 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

Dykes Says We'll Hold Top

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13—(AP)—The league leading Cleveland Indians are on top for good — that's the way Manager Jimmy Dykes of the "spoiling" Philadelphia Athletics sizes up the American league pennant race.

"A first class mound corps that's really tough to beat and enough hitting support to do the job, make the Tribe the best in the league right now," Dykes says.

Dykes' evaluation of the Indians is based on facts gathered the last couple of months while his A's collected 21 victories in 36 games, 30 of them with first division rivals.

A look at the record of the Cleveland big four bears out Dykes' opinion. Bob Feller (22-7), Mike Garcia (19-11), Bob Lemon (17-11), and Early Wynn (18-12) have accounted for 76 of the 89 games on the win side of the Cleveland ledger. That's better than 80 per cent.

Dykes supports his views on the Indians' pennant prospects by citing their schedule:

"They have 13 games to go, with nearly three weeks left to play. This means that the big four will get plenty of rest."

As for the other contenders, the second place Yankees (one game out) and the Red Sox (four and a half games behind) Dykes thinks each will keep the other from taking the flag. He said:

"The eight games left between New York and Boston are going to tell the story there. It will be awful hard for either club to come up with say six of the eight, which it will need to affect the standings."

Proposal For a $250,000 Stadium

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 13—(AP)—The Jackson County Planning Commission has taken under advisement a proposal to construct a $250,000 stadium near U. S. Highway 40 and Phelps road about six miles east of Kansas City.

An application for a special permit was filed August 29 by Ralph Spitcaufsky, Kansas City, a general contractor. The stadium, including an extension face track and seating facilities for 60,000, would be on 80 acres about 900 feet from the intersection.

An adjoining 80-acre tract would be used for parking lots to accommodate 18,000 motor cars, Spitcaufsky said.

The contractor said the stadium would be used for track meets, stage shows, fairs, professional football games, boxing and other events. He said plans do not include motor car racing.

Fights Last Night

NEW YORK — Sugar Ray Robinson, 157½, New York, stopped Randy Turpin, 159, England (10) for the world middleweight championship.

BALTIMORE — Baby Ortiz at 131¼, Los Angeles, stopped Jimmy McAllister, 131, Baltimore (8).

More than 2,000,000 freight cars are used on the 225,000 miles of railroad lines in the United States.

Players to go Before Jury

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 13—(AP)—Bradley basketball players Fred Schlictman and Jim Kelly, both involved in point-rigging a game last winter, have agreed to tell a grand jury "exactly what happened and give our stories."

The two players, both juniors last season, yesterday signed immunity waivers and agreed to appear before the Peoria county grand jury now in session.

Two other Bradley players connected with the bribe scandal, Gene Melchiorre and Aaron Preece, have not yet been heard from in regard to a grand jury appearance, state's attorney Michael Shore said.

The four players have admittted participating in a $4,000 payoff by gamblers for rigging point spreads in Bradley's game with Oregon State in Peoria, December 7, 1950.

Big Seven Briefs

COLUMBIA, Sept. 13 — (AP) — The Missouri Tigers Wednesday had their easiest day of football practice.

Coach Don Faurot gave his men the morning off for rest and rain sharply curtailed the afternoon sessions. A scheduled defensive scrimmage was washed out.

Faurot said his ailing quarterback, Bob Schoonmaker, is improving, but probably will not be able to work until next Mondey.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Sept. 13—(AP)—The Kansas Jayhawks got a holiday from their football workouts Wednesday.

Registration for classes and a heavy downpour of rain caused Coach Jules V. Sikes to call off the scheduled afternoon workout.

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 13—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma football squad scrimmaged for an hour Wednesday concentrating on passing.

Sophomore ends Bill Beckman and Hugh Ballard, out for several days with injuries, returned to practice.

Quarterbacks Eddie Crowder and Jack Van Pool had good luck in their throwing to ends Dick Ellis and Jack Lockett. Halfback Billy Vessels and Frank Silva also teamed up well in the aerial exhibit.

Honest Treasurer's Reward

GILBERT PLAINS, Manitoba—(AP)—Treasurer Lloyd Macklin of St. Paul's United Church has long watched the church accounts. On leaving to make his home in Winnipeg, he was given a purse by the congregation.

La Scala Programming

MILAN, Italy— (AP) —LaScala's opera season will begin this year on Dec. 8, anniversary of Milan's Patron Saint Ambrose. In the past, the season usually started on the day after Christmas.

The program will include Giuseppe Verdi's "Vespri Siciliani," to be conducted by Victor De Sabata. Other operas to be presented will be Verdi's "Luisa Miller" and "Rigoletto," Wagner's "Tristam and Isolt" and "Die Meistersinger," Rossini's "Barber of Seville" and Beethoven's "Fidelio."

Meanwhile, construction has begun within the Scala building of a "Little Scala" theater. It will have a seating capacity of 600 and will be used primarily for ballets and chamber music concerts for which the big Scala is not available.

Reds Watch Pictures

BERLIN —(AP)— The long arm of the police and the long arm of the censor are closing in on the photographer in Communist-ruled East Germany.

A new law requires that all professional photographers—press, portrait and commercial—register with the police. They must also register all their employees, especially their dark room men. The law demands that every photograph made must bear the stamps of the photographer who made it and the man who developed it, together with their police registration numbers. This applies even to snapshots for passports or identification cards.

This is to make it easier for the "people's police" to catch up with the producers and disseminators of any pictures regarded objectionable.

His First Job

Benjamin Franklin printed the first Masonic book in America in 1734.

Good Old Days

When Andrew Jackson was president more than 120 years ago, there was no government debt and federal taxes were few and far between. During this period, beefsteak sold for as low as 4 cents at Delmonico's in New York.

Policeman as Campaign Issue

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13 —(AP)—A St. Louis policeman may become an important issue in Missouri's senatorial campaign next year.

Political fireworks already have started to pop around Lt. Maurice O'Neill, whom the Globe-Democrat says has the personal backing of Governor Forest Smith for promotion to a captain on the force.

The newspaper says today that despite criticism of his action Smith is insisting on O'Neill's promotion. O'Neill, a veteran policeman but a lieutenant for less than two years, is a brother of Matt O'Neill, a north St. Louis Democratic leader. Smith frequently has been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate next year.

Ancel A. Skaggs, chairman of the city committee of the Republican party, rose quickly to the politically significance of the verbal battle raging around O'Neill's head.

"The affair will be a campaign issue next year," Skaggs said. "With gamblers constantly striving to get the city opened up, this certainly is no time to let politics dictate police appointments."

Smith himself has had no comment about the newspaper's charges but Maurice G. Roberts, president of the police board here, said Smith had not asked him to promote O'Neill but that on a recent visit to the capitol the governor had told him he had "received a request for the promotion of O'Neill." He added that Smith said it was a matter for the board to decide.

He Has Fish on the Roof

But Why Fish Turn Left Is Keeping Him Awake

Henry Testo and Garden: On the roof, bass, minnows and frogs.

By NEA Service

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Henry Testo's garden pond isn't really a pond and it's nowhere near a garden. But it is loaded with brilliant colored water lilies and full of fresh fish.

Actually, the pond is a layer of water on the roof of Testo's factory. The water was installed on the roof to cool the shop underneath.

"Despite forced ventilation in the shop downstairs," says Testo, throwing cracker crumbs to his baby bass, minnows and goldfish "it was quite uncomfortable on sunny days. So, like a number of other shops and even some California homes, our shop was given a layer of water on top.

"It worked well. We used water from the air-conditioning system downstairs. I would say on real hot days the cooling effect was as much as 15 to 18 degrees."

But Testo decided the water would look better if it was treated as a floating garden. He snatched an hour here and there from his work, and built the roof-top pool into a thing of beauty.

The fish glide over a bed of bright pebbles. They swim through all sorts of plants. Topping the pool are red, yellow and lavender water lilies with their flat green leaves. Frogs dive off big rocks. The garden can be illuminated at night.

One thing puzzles Testo, who is an inventor and machine tool designer and is curious about mechanics — even fish mechanics. At night, the lamp is lit and it attracts bugs. The fish circle the lamp to have a bite of bug.

But the little goldfish always circle the lamp counterclockwise. Testo is very curious about this habit. His cooling device created his hobby of water gardening and now his hobby is creating a scientific problem.

How to Escape Through Iron Curtain: Pick Mushrooms, And Ride Red Police Car

Karel Douba: "It was much easier than I had dreamed."

By Allyn Baum
NEA Staff Correspondent

BERLIN — There are two very useful items to use if you want to slip through Czechoslovakia's Iron Curtain and escape to freedom in West Berlin.

One is a mushroom hunter's basket.

The other is a Soviet zone "People's Police" car.

Karel Douba, a 32-year-old Czech, used them both for a bizarre flight from Red oppression.

Douba decided to go West after Czech political police had kept him locked up in a Prague prison for a year. His politics? Ping pong.

The table tennis champ of northern Czechoslovakia, Douba was arrested last year.

"All I had done," he explained, "was to tell people in a restaurant how well our tennis stars had done when they fled West. Some eaves-dropping agent reported me to the police.

When he got out of jail again last May, Douba began making plans. "I was relieved to find border-jumping much easier than I had dreamed," he said. "The woods bordering the Soviet zone weren't really closely guarded at all."

With a mushroom basket in his hand — and a couple of mushrooms in it for authenticity — he was able to fool the one guard he met on the Czech side of the border.

The minute the guard turned his back, Douba jumped the ditch that marked the border and was in East Germany.

A little later, after he had worked his way through the Grotteau border woods, his heart almost stopped. He stumbled into the "People's Police" car.

But instead of getting arrested, he got a free ride to the outskirts of Berlin.

"Good thing I speak German," he said. "I told the police driver, the only person in the car, that I was from Dresden and going to Berlin. He believed me — and wasn't talkative."

He got to West Berlin simply by boarding the elevated train in the Soviet sector.

Now in a West Berlin refugee camp, Douba would like to go on further — to South Africa. After his luck with the mushrooms and the police car, he thinks it will be easy.

Community News from Tipton

By Mrs. Thomas W. Miller

There's an unlucky spot in the road for Tipton folks a mile north of Bellair on Highway 5.

The Oscar Stratman and Jack Needy family cars have had accidents there at a bridge and the latest mishap to local citizens was just after the noon hour Sunday when one of the largest of the Frank Gerbes Super Market tractors and trailers ran off the road and into a creek.

Andy Geiser, who was en route to Minnesota for potatoes and cabbage, was lodged in the cab and it was first believed that blow torches had to be used to free him. This proved unnecessary and Andy was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Boonville for treatment of shock and for several fractured ribs. His condition is not serious and he is recovering nicely.

The tractor, an International, was towed into Tipton Monday morning to the Putnam-Gabert Chevrolet company, and workers were freeing the big Highway trailer from the creek, Tuesday.

The cab of the tractor was completely demolished and the trailer was damaged, but it is thought that both can be repaired. This automotive equipment was purchased by Frank J. Gerbes, owner of a number of super markets throughout Central Missouri, early this year.

About the same place over two years ago a similar accident occurred to the same firm although not as severe. The driver at that time was Merlyn Lewis, of Tipton, who was uninjured.

Pvt. and Mrs. Robert Hood are the parents of a six-pound, six-ounce daughter born to them September 2 at St. Mary's hospital in Jefferson City. The baby has been given the name, Pamela Marie.

The mother is the former Miss Georgia Crider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Crider, of Vienna, and the father is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hood, of Tipton.

Pvt. Hood entered the army last March and is stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood where he is in the mail department.

The mother and baby arrived in Tipton Friday from the hospital and they will remain here for a time with Mr. and Mrs. Hood before returning to their home in Vienna.

Mrs. Laura Kelby, who for the past ten years has been a maid in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Bixler has returned to her work there after being off work two months because of illness.

Cecil J. Kern, of Tripoli, Ia., has purchased the E. H. Murdock farm, five miles southeast of Syracuse. He will occupy the 110-acre improved farm along with Bruce Johnson, who resides with him.

The day was ideal, there was a good crowd present and bidding was brisk at the closing-out sale held Monday by Mrs. S. A. Schmitt at her farm, six miles southwest of Tipton.

Mrs. Schmitt is having a new home built in Tipton to which she will move when it is completed.

Receipts of the sale totaled around $5,600.

She has with her on a two-week's visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Schmitt, of Bishop, Calif.

Mrs. Oliver Barklage, of Omaha, Nebr., who was here for the wedding on Saturday of her niece, Miss Mary Ann Yontz and Linus Linnebur, is remaining for several days longer stay here in the home of her mother, Mrs. E W. Otto.

Mrs. Barklage will leave for Kansas City Friday accompanied by her mother and the ladies will visit for a few days there with Mrs. G. R. Fager, Mrs. Otto's sister-in-law.

Mrs. Ray White was in Kansas City last week the guest of Mrs. Gladys Pulley.

Herbert Spieler, manager of the John Deere agency, the Tipton Farm Supply company, was in St. Louis on business Monday, accompanying Weaver Scherff, of California.

Weatherman's Weather

CENTRALIA, Ill.—(AP)—All kinds of weather befouled the summer vacation of Clyde Pittman—and he's the weatherman at Harrisburg, Ill.

The Pittmans ran into flood at Lawrence, Kas.; hail at Emporia, Kas.; dust storms in Colorado; snow and 23 degrees in Montana; ruins left by a tornado in Wisconsin. Returning through Illinois, they encountered another flood.

Singapore Harbor Devoid Of Fire-Fighting Boats

SINGAPORE—(AP)—Believe it or not, Singapore is the only big port in the world without a fire-fighting boat. Furthermore, it's not likely to get one, even though Fire Chief J. G. Shaw says "it is absolutely necessary."

Shaw told the municipal commissioners that the absence of a fire boat is alarming, as there are millions of dollars worth of shipping daily afloat within Singapore harbor.

However, the committee which studied the question of a fire fighting service for the Singapore Harbor board rejected the proposal because the gain in efficiency by having a fire boat "would not be commensurate with the expense involved."

Home Furnishings Feel Pinch In Building Slowdown

NEW YORK — (AP) — The slowdown in home building under federal restrictions on credit is now expected to have an impact on house furnishings and other retail dealers.

Frederick E. Gibson, president of the Long Island Home Builders Institute, reports that surveys show that new home buyers spend an average of $1,450 for furniture, electrical appliances, hardware, draperies, dishes and other household items.

"A total of 64,000 dwellings were built in the four Long Island counties alone last year," he said. "If 1951 production drops 60 per cents, as now indicated, this will mean an expenditure of about $37,000,000 for such accessories instead of the $92,000,000 spent by buyers of 1950 homes."

Prescription For Sagging Arches

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—If your feet are giving out on you under the strain of constant daily wear, members of the physical education staff of the University of California advise exercise to get them back in shape.

One exercise they say can be done while reading the evening paper. With legs stretched out on a footstool, stretch and separate the toes as if you were grabbing with them. The instructors also suggest walking forward with toes pointed inward, "pigeon toed," as far as possible to strengthen foot muscles. The exercises also reduce fatigue, according to the body-builders.

Paper Weights For Show Only

LONG BEACH, Calif.—(AP)—Don Sparks collects paper weights. He has 245 of 'em, gathered all over the world, but not one is doing its duty.

Instead of holding down sheafs of paper, Sparks' collection is on display in a cabinet in his home. He acquires them for their value as curiosities.

His collection includes models from 24 states, Hawaii, Alaska, Mexico, Italy, Australia, New Zealand, Korea, the Philippine Islands and the South Pacific. Among them is an Irish crystal doorknob from the White House, which he obtained at an auction of the effects of Admiral Dewey.

Sure-Fire Lie Detector

MECHANICSBURG, Pa.—(AP)—The proof of the pudding is in the parking meter, says Burgess Ray E. Hutter of Mechanicsburg.

Whenever a citizen fined for a parking meter violation says the meter doesn't worok—and that's a favorite excuse—Burgess Hutter goes into action.

He accompanies the accused to the meter and inserts his own penny or nickel. If the meter works, the fine sticks. If not, the citizen gets his money back.

"The meters hardly ever fail me," says Hutter with a grin.

The food of the hamadryad of India, the largest species of cobra, consists entirely of other snakes.

In China, monkeys were once used in a phase of harvesting tea crops.

Although water holes are gathering places for many of the animals on which a lion preys, he seldom makes a kill at these oases.
